Author's note

When references are made here to regions on the surface of the Earth, there is no attempt to establish their current political-geographic relationship, but rather to provide readers with data and points that will help them transcend this and perceive that beyond the current terrestrial life other realities are active both in these areas and in human beings.

It is urgent that there be a greater consciousness of those realities and that awakened members of humanity take on their real roles in the evolutionary stream, given that planetary chaos has become more general and obvious.

This subject, while considered damaging by those who cling to concrete life, holds precious energy within it and spreads seeds of the new state of being that is awaiting us all.

Introduction

Islands of Salvation

For almost two days I intensely studied the planetary state of affairs, especially regarding the conjuncture created at this period of time at the concrete level. The impression I gained was that I was being informed inwardly about the details of this situation, as well as about possible future developments. At the external level of consciousness, certain scenarios became so clear, it was hard for me to believe that humanity in general did not perceive the seriousness of the chaos that is taking shape in a general way throughout all areas of life.

I could see the effects of solar radiation, which ever more intensely is penetrating Earth's atmosphere, adding to the growing nuclear radiation generated by human beings, as well as the interplay between these two. I could also see that those who will remain on the physical plane of the terrestrial surface during the hardest phase of the planetary transition, which is drawing close, must prepare for quite threatening situations. That preparation, in spite of being essentially based upon faith and surrender, includes knowledge of certain material facts.

The time is soon coming—even before a global holocaust—when external activities in many areas of the planet may have to be carried out almost exclusively during hours when there is no full sunlight, so intense and purifying are the sun’s rays becoming daily. Official scientific warnings concerning this will not be useful because the factors in play are very different from what is stated. Beyond uncontrolled chemical pollution, there are areas where the sources of previously potable water are becoming brackish; in others the springs are drying up. The waters are being displaced so that they may fully adjust to the manifestation of the future Earth. Thus, for these and other reasons, entire regions may have their natural environments completely transformed.

Other understandings emerged in my consciousness in an equally unmistakable manner. I could perceive that within the laws known at this time on the material plane, at a certain point it will be impossible to survive on the surface of the planet. Until then, the suffering of this humanity will continue to increase. Many will want to die before their time, but this desire will not be met. They will call out for death, but it will not come to them until their karmic debts<sup>1</sup> have been satisfied. After this, their essence will be able to disconnect from the dying bodies and transfer to other points of the cosmos.

I received these impressions clearly. They did not stimulate familiar feelings, but they brought a sense of responsibility with them: a demand for a deepening connection with the Brotherhood of the Cosmos, a network of consciousnesses that guides the evolution of the universes and by means of which, that evolution is processed.

1 Karmic debts. According to the law of material karma, or the law of cause and effect, every action—on the physical, the emotional or the mental plane—generates positive, negative, or neutral effects. The negative effects generated on the material levels during the existence of a particle (which can be an atom, an individual, a nation, a planet or broader nuclei) are called karmic debts.

However, in that instant, when faced with the seriousness of what was being shown me, I could not foresee how humans would move through such a critical phase. I thus held silence until, within myself, I was shown the existence of small nuclei placed within the subtle levels and even on the physical level of the planet, which could be called islands of salvation.<sup>2</sup> The life on the surface of the Earth will be preserved in them.

At the same time that I received these ideas through subjective impression, I was also receiving information from televised news programs about the failure of the experiment of a group of scientists who had attempted to keep some individuals isolated from the outside world by means of an ecosystem that they designed to be balanced and self-sustaining. In other words,

2 It is necessary to clarify that the term salvation does not include the egotistical meaning that it normally has in common usage. Salvation must be understood to be the uplifting of consciousness and its entry into an evolutionary conjuncture of cosmic proportions. This process takes place on Earth as a whole and is reflected in different degrees in the particles of life of which it is formed. Therefore, the goal of the islands of salvation is not that of preserving the current human and planetary state, but rather that of the sublimation of beings and of life, and their contact with future patterns of development.

it was an environment that would not become contaminated with the current planetary pollution and where survival would be possible.

Over the past ages innumerable evolutionary opportunities were given to human beings, but these were rejected. At this time, with so many retrograde states entrenched in the life and consciousness of humanity, the transition into a new period requires clarity of goals and the firm decision to keep on that track, thus avoiding entering the disintegrating stream.

The islands of salvation are not built by terrestrial technology, such as the aforementioned experiment of artificially creating an ecosystem, which still may futilely be attempted. Rather, they are magnetic domes built by intraterrestrial and extraterrestrial vessels<sup>3</sup> at the subtle levels, in order to stop

3 Vessels. Normally called “unidentified flying objects,” the extraterrestrial and intraterrestrial vessels that are manifesting on Earth at this time are really discernable vehicles of elevated cosmic consciousnesses. Terrestrial humans are trying to travel through space by means of material technology. Meanwhile, those vessels work under supraphysical laws and are the densification of the light-element itself. It must be emphasized that, as from 8.8.88, which was the beginning of the planetary transition at the material level, certain regions from becoming contaminated by the dense vibration of civilization in general. A System of Mirrors<sup>4</sup> is installed in these domes that is connected to some of the active planetary centers,<sup>5</sup> and a continuous work of

Hierarchies are carefully guarding the environs of the Earth so that no negative elements that come from dark regions of sidereal space can enter. Before this date these came and added themselves to the already heavy contingent of chaotic forces that are present on the planet. These elements also manifested by means of interdimensional vehicles, which produced a series of negative contacts between human beings and extraterrestrial beings. Also, there is a semi-secret campaign in progress on the part of official organizations of certain countries, the objective of which is to channel public opinion in specific directions and to keep humanity ignorant of what is really occurring in this field. In this way, untruths were intentionally generated and propagated, and this fiction was designed to serve the most varied—and usually suspect—interests of scientific institutions. However, light cannot remain hidden and, in spite of everything, reveals itself within any who search for it.

4 Mirror. A participating nucleus of the subtle network of cosmic communications, called the System of Mirrors, or simply Mirrors. That nucleus can be a space vessel, an individual, a civilization, a Hierarchy, a planet, or even a whole galaxy. Certain members of Earth's surface humanity are being prepared to consciously participate in this network. See HISTORY WRITTEN IN THE MIRRORS (Principles of Cosmic Communication), by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

5 Planetary centers. Nuclei that control and transform the energies of the planet; there are intraterrestrial civilizations transmutation<sup>6</sup> is kept up.

The beings who are to transform into the sowers of future life on Earth are guided into these magnetic domes. This sowing not only involves the human kingdom, but also the elemental,<sup>7</sup> the mineral, the plant, the animal, and the devic<sup>8</sup> kingdoms. The scope of action of a high order of evolution connected to them. They are the energy bases through which the planetary Hierarchy acts. The work of the seven main planetary centers (Anu Tea, Aurora, Erks, Iberah, Lis-Fátima, Mirna Jad and Miz Tli Tlan) has already been revealed to surface humans during this period. See page 194 of this book as well as similar books by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

6 Transmutation. A process by means of which the elevation of the energies of a specific environment can occur, both in the vibratory pattern and in the intrinsic quality of those energies. This term can also be used for the process in which a monad gives up its bodies to some other more evolved one. On monadic transmutation see SIGNS OF CONTACT, by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

7 Elemental kingdom. An existence parallel to the human one; it is the foundation of the Earth's evolutionary chain. It works closely with the devic kingdom. Elemental life is the substance of the planes of existence. See THE BIRTH OF FUTURE HUMANITY, and the Appendix of THE RESURGENCE OF FATIMA (Lis), by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

8 Devic kingdom. The kingdom with an evolution parallel of these islands can vary according to their tasks, as well as be a result of the response of the beings that are involved with them on the material plane.

Such facts are still practically unknown to terrestrial humanity, in spite of innumerable individuals having been drawn to those magnetic areas and inspired to develop an activity there that is in harmony with the Evolutionary Plan.<sup>9</sup> However, most of those attempts have failed because they end up being to that of the human one. It is made up of beings, consciousnesses, and hierarchies of a high degree of purity that facilitate the manifestation of life in the universes. In esoteric psychology it is symbolically called “the army of sound,” since it uses vibrations to shape the forms of what must be manifested. In order to do this they are active in a broad vibratory spectrum that includes contact with the archetypes and the building of molds that shape concrete forms. Angels are a sector of the devic kingdom. See THE BIRTH OF FUTURE HUMANITY, and the Appendix of THE RESURGENCE OF FATIMA (Lis), by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

9 Evolutionary Plan. It is the expression of the cosmic purpose of a universe, and therefore of all of the particles of life of which it is made. It establishes the ways in which evolution must occur. The Hierarchy is the shaper of the Evolutionary Plan in the universe that it governs. See footnote on “Hierarchy” on page 22.

contaminated by the corrupt habits active in the current civilization.

In these times in which huge regions are becoming uninhabitable, a rescuable<sup>10</sup> being will be shown the location of some of these islands of salvation. Relatively harmonious life will be possible, even on the physical level, in these domes until planetary balance is regained, because they have an etheric field<sup>11</sup> with a special vibratory quality and because they are linked with intra-terrestrial centers. However, it can be stated that humanity will be withdrawn en masse from the surface of the planet so that surface reharmoniz-

10 Rescuable beings. Human beings and non-humans that will be withdrawn from the surface of the planet in order to keep their inner nuclei of consciousness intact, with no need of participating in the harsh struggles that will occur in the material terrestrial environment. Whether a particle is rescuable or not is established by a vibratory factor that comes from the inner potential of that particle and from the level of consciousness where it is polarized. In the case of the human kingdom, there is also an inner choice made at the monadic level. See footnote on “Rescue” (below); also NOAH’S VESSEL, GATEWAYS TO THE COSMOS, INNER ENCOUNTER (The Consciousness Vessel), and THE TIME OF RESCUE, by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

11 Etheric field. The vibratory level that interconnects the concrete physical plane with the subtle planes.

ing can take place, because very few will stay here during that critical phase.<sup>12</sup>

A characteristic of these islands of salvation is that within their aura what can be called magnetic inversion occurs very easily, allowing the materialization and dematerialization of beings, vessels, and objects with a minimum use of energy. This possibility will be especially important for the rescue<sup>13</sup>—be it of the physical body or of the subtle body. The application of this and of other supraphysical laws also allows the effects of nuclear contamination to be con-

12 According to previous information, all of humanity was to be withdrawn from the surface of the Earth during the reharmonizing phase of the material plane, which follows the purification that is already taking place. However, the possibility of some incarnated human beings remaining was confirmed by the Councils in charge of the Rescue Operation. See CREATION (Following the Ways of Energy), by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

13 Rescue. Also called Operation Rescue. It describes the withdrawal of beings, human or not, from the environs of the Earth. This rescue can happen on the material plane, including the material bodies of the being, or on the subjective levels. This basically depends on the destination of the rescuable being. See GATEWAYS TO THE COSMOS, INNER ENCOUNTER (The Consciousness Vessel), and THE TIME OF RESCUE, by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

The beneficial activity of these islands of salvation is not restricted to the interior of the magnetic domes. When they are activated, they can radiate different energies into the Earth's aura. The intraterrestrial centers with which they are linked, control their radiatory mechanism according to the needs of each moment.

Although the existence of these areas is a promising fact, people in general do not immediately respond to the call for entering into contact with them. Thus many of them—true oases within the desolation of the Earth's surface—cannot be activated on the physical plane because they lack channels of contact. It must be taken into account that the human element is a component in a circuit that cannot be completed without the person's participation, and at this time this element is increasingly more alienated from planetary reality.

The search for solutions should not wait for the full presence of chaos because unharmonious states will reach an irreparable intensity at the level of material laws. Those who have been called to localities where they could develop some activity consonant with the Evolutionary Plan should not delay nor postpone their decisions to the degree their psychological and spiritual structure will allow. As Morya<sup>14</sup> says, to cease to faithfully and immediately follow the guidance of the Hierarchy<sup>15</sup> generates effects similar to the derailment of a train's wagons. In reality, each being is connected to a network made up of many others who are waiting for certain events and attitudes that will move them all together

14 Morya. The name in the past planetary cycle of an important Hierarchy connected to the energy of cosmic willpower. Today, at a deeper level, this Hierarchy is known as Amhaj. See THE VOICE OF AMHAJ, Irdin Editora, and THE FORMATION OF HEALERS, Editora Pensamento, by the same author.

15 Hierarchy. It can be planetary, solar or cosmic. It is the union of consciousnesses that have transcended material laws and that have reached the sublime stages of non-material existence. With a unified and cohesive body, these consciousnesses transmit the logoc purpose to the beings that evolve in the universe where they are active, stimulating their realization. During this period many transformations in the planetary Hierarchy are taking place, which elevates their service potential. In reality, a Hierarchy is an energy stream, and the consciousnesses that belong to it are to be found at different stages. The central nucleus of this stream is also called Hierarchy. See CREATION (Following the Ways of Energy), by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

towards an evolutionary goal that is familiar to them in the depths of their consciousness.

There are lines of development that have been foreseen for the redemption of the planet and of surface humanity. Mainly during this time of emergency, this process needs collaborators—beings that bring sacred manifestations into existence on Earth. Never before has it been possible for humanity to penetrate so deeply into this field, as we shall see.

When Faced With the Unexpected

The preparation of individuals and of service groups that can act during times of extreme planetary chaos goes beyond mere credentials for technical, physical, and psychological abilities. In all sectors of life, the problems will be so unpredictable and the solutions so far from current human experience that certainty in response to insoluble situations can only occur through being in harmony with supraphysical laws.

In spite of the fact that such laws are practically unknown to Earth's surface humans, they can draw closer to those laws and even live them if they create within themselves an appropriate environment that will take the laws in, and if they act according to them in individual or group form. In these days we can testify to three facts that directly address being faced with the unexpected and that are important to human and planetary evolution:

- the accelerated deterioration of civilization;
- the emergence of an inner energy that points in new directions;
- the occurrence of a process that can symbolically be called redemption.

Birth, ascension, and deterioration are stages in natural evolution. They are intrinsic to the expression of life on the material levels and in a general way, no manifested form is free from fulfilling them. Meanwhile, the consciousness that inhabits form does not need to be tied to this natural rhythm. It can function according to higher laws still unknown to most human beings. Thus, even though everything around is degenerating, it is possible to live another reality<sup>16</sup> within oneself.

After consciousness allowed itself to become involved in the deceits of terrestrial materialism, the act of elevation is equivalent to a redemption. But in order to establish itself at more subtle levels, it will need to reconstruct its energy and vibratory structure. If this reconstruction is done intelligently, it also benefits others that need to go through the same process.

Human beings, having entered into research for the purpose of gaining material progress and instant solutions for external problems without exploring the roots of those problems, experienced a scientific development that was disconnected from the expansions of consciousness necessary to civilization's harmonious forward movement. So today we are living with conflicting circumstances, which came as a result of humanity not being prepared for a correct relationship with the universe of which it is a part.

The scientific world lost its true direction when it restricted itself to analysis, to protocols, and rational logic: mental creations that are not able to express broader realities. Scientists that really know what they are doing are rare. Most limit themselves to dogmatism or to the fantasy that they are deepening their knowledge of truth, both states hiding the narrowness of the ego's<sup>17</sup> vision and its thirst for power. A consciousness that is impartial enough can clearly perceive that the scientific world is adrift, involved with aberrations<sup>18</sup> and compromised by the economic empire.

Surface life has reached a point where, if individuals do not contact their inner essence, they do not have access to pointers to the truth. For example, the reciprocal preconceptions between science and religion have become a serious stumbling block to progress. There are thoughtforms<sup>19</sup> that human beings greatly

17 Ego. A being's nucleus of consciousness on the material plane. The "sense of self"—the source of which resides in deeper nuclei of consciousness—is projected onto it. The state of the ego is characterized by pride, divisiveness, and ambition. It must be transcended by means of the individual's surrender to the inner world, which is free of those retrograde forces. Transcendence of the ego is at the foundation of many philosophies and, at this period, is being assisted by the powerful energy conjuncture present on the planet. See MIRNA JAD—Inner Sanctuary, amongst other books by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

18 Examples of these aberrations are the current terrestrial human work in the fields of genetics and nuclear energy.

19 Thoughtform. In spite of being much subtler than the physical level, the mental plane is also a material level.

trust to guide their steps that are so engrained that only very deep transformations can dispel them. Those transformations are rapidly drawing closer.

The limited amount of contact of scientists in general with broader levels of consciousness make them true automatons and cause them to carry out research that has absolutely no evolutionary impulse. In this way, science proceeds in a completely lethargic manner and refuses to discover the origin of what is happening in the formal world.

All thoughts generate a form in mental matter that stays active for a certain period. That form may strengthen or dissolve, depending on whether it is given vitality by similar thoughts. It can also clump together with others with which it has an affinity. A thoughtform stimulates the formation of others, both on the astral and the physical-etheric planes, and can act at a distance. Earth's surface human beings are almost not aware of the effects of their thoughts. Individuals that take on evolutionary tasks are taught to channel their thoughts and desires towards a higher goal within the inner center of their own consciousness. At this time, the concrete mental is a field of conflicts where the forces of chaos act freely, so transcending this level is a prerequisite for reaching states of clarity and understanding. See THE BOOK OF SIGNS and NEW SIGNS OF CONTACT, by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

The separation of human knowledge into stagnated sectors that really should be working in close collaboration gets in the way of important unions that should occur on humanity's mental plane. The distance between the scientific world and the mystical one, and between philosophic vision and religious vision, must be eliminated so that wisdom may emerge in life on the surface of the planet. So that union will not come about through an attempt reconciliation of differing systems, but rather through the fusion of the essences of those manifestations. This is already beginning to take place on the inner planes according to cycles foreseen by higher laws.

The simple harmonization of tendencies is restricted to the human milieu. What is occurring on the inner planes of the planet is something broader. It is the union of creator energies projected on surface life as areas of knowledge. That union is supra-human work in which high consciousnesses, who know the evolutionary goal of the planet, are participating. This also has the help of some members of surface humanity that are searching for true pathways.

The reality of the subtle levels of this universe is beginning to be reflected in the denser levels. The boundaries that separated the different worlds and dimensions are becoming more permeable and, in certain cases, are being dissolved. In addition, human beings are being stimulated to more quickly cooperate in the integration of their own being. That integration is processed on the inner planes and has repercussions even in the physical, causing individuals to be more receptive to evolutionary transformations.

The external manifestation of members of the spiritual and cosmic Hierarchy may occur more openly than in the past. One of the goals of that manifestation is to implant an electromagnetic set of conditions in the planetary sphere that will allow a massive transfer of rescuable beings to other dimensions. This will be especially necessary when telluric and other purifying movements will become even more accentuated and have a broader scope. Until now, the information on these events has merely been warnings, but at any moment may become an almost generalized reality on the concrete plane.

The etheric structure of the planet—and therefore also of human beings—is expanding. At this time, the etheric currents have the potential for transporting healing energies to places previously unreachable for them. Matter is being made subtler, and this brings humans new perspectives for the solutions to many problems, mainly in the field of healing.<sup>20</sup>

Each time a student traveled on a road bordered by eucalyptus trees, he observed a powerful subtle fire superimposed on the physical plane reality, which penetrated all of the trees like a burning jungle, both outer and inner. It was not a vision. Those trees were perceived as an extension of the etheric body of the student who, in a certain sense, was experiencing what was occurring there.

He could clearly perceive the energy of the First Ray<sup>21</sup> contained in the fiery fluid as well as the power radiated by the physical presence itself of the eucalyptuses. That power seemed to want to break the trunks of the trees and expand. The strength that they emanated in that moment was enormous. That fiery fluid came from within the Earth and projected into space. There is no doubt that there are certain expressions of Nature that are more like essential fire<sup>22</sup> than others.

The levels of subtlety that can be achieved by the inter-relationship of a human being's energy with that of plants is such that it would cause great admiration in this humanity, which still gives such little importance to the existence of supraphysical levels. As the vibration of the common human's bodies is still very dense, these ethereal expressions of plants have little effect upon him or her. Those who have awakened to these realities and have put into practice the teachings they have received can achieve a degree of sensitivity that is free of the fantasies and make-believe that are common to those polarized on the planes of sensation.

22 Fires. The fires are vivifying energies of the multiple levels of cosmic manifestation. There are three basic modalities of fire that are active in this solar system: cosmic fire, etheric (or solar) fire, and fire by friction. In reality they are expressions of a single energy that is at the origin of all existence. They express different qualities, thus determining the relationship between form and essence. See UNVEILED SECRETS (Iberah and Anu Teã), and THE BIRTH OF FUTURE HUMANITY, by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

The planetary transition could occur in a harmonious fashion that is in attunement with the laws of the various levels of consciousness, even during the current chaotic phase of the planet—the purification of which is governed by solar forces.<sup>23</sup> In the coming times of transition when chaos will become global, human beings will have the assistance of powerful energies that will flow from the subtle levels of life: levels where those who serve—incarnated or not—are also active. They will also be assisted more openly than now by extraterrestrial and intraterrestrial laboratory vessels,<sup>24</sup> through the positive intervention of kingdoms that parallel that of humans such as the devic and the elemental, and mainly through the inspiration that comes to them from their own inner nuclei. There will be a broad conjuncture or set of circumstances—usually producing a crisis—available: the more intuitive individuals are, the more receptive they are to that which is unknown and the better they will be able to use that help. Without it, the circumstances will become unbearable for their human bodies: the physical-etheric, the emotional and the mental.

23 See MIZ TLI TLAN—An Awakening World, by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

24 Laboratory vessels. Cosmic nuclei of energy and consciousness; they are part of the work base of the Healing Hierarchies and of the Entities governing the evolution of Races and of the kingdoms that are part of the confederated universe.

Supranatural Realities

At this time, there is an intricate play of involutory forces, whose instruments are governments, organized religions, and financial institutions, as well as a part of the communications media. Many people become addicted, feeding upon this interplay, sometimes without even realizing it.

Events that transcend the material laws known to human beings, and which rarely become openly known, take place regularly on Earth's surface. Since official scientific institutions cannot explain them, they are described as fantasies and deceptions. However, the individuals who are relatively non-identified with this obstructive interplay know within themselves that these supernatural events are real.

There were periods in which extraterrestrial and intraterrestrial vessels would materialize regularly on the La Aurora<sup>25</sup> ranch in Uruguay.<sup>26</sup> The episodes created considerable expansions of consciousness in those who observed them. When faced with certain phenomena, these individuals became more universal and ceased limiting themselves to the frameworks of knowledge of the current surface civilization. The apparitions demonstrated that the vessels have innumerable possibilities for materializing and dematerializing not only themselves, but also objects within their magnetic sphere.

On one occasion after a small vessel had set down in a pasture on La Aurora, a huge, non-poisonous mushroom grew that was much larger than a normal one. A soup made with that mushroom fed various people for several days without 25 Known as the extension of the intraterrestrial center of Aurora on the planet's surface. This center has specific functions in the current guiding of Earth into a more subtle state. Aurora is active in this transition both from the planetary and systemic view and the individual process of each surface human being. See AURORA—Cosmic Essence of Healing and UNVEILED SECRETS (Iberah and Anu Tea), by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

26 These were times of such intense manifestations that both NASA and the Uruguayan army were closely investigating them.

Another thing that was noticed on the ranch was that the emanations of certain trees (such as two eucalyptuses) were transformed on the etheric plane by the vessels, which generated an energy fluid that integrated and renewed the solidity of life.

The psychological structure of most human beings is shaky, and therefore vulnerable to the severe conditions that will develop. They will need to be supported by the combined efforts of a network of energies and consciousnesses, already proven to be present through these and other efforts, of which the service groups<sup>27</sup> are a part. Depending on need, these groups will be able to be active on the material physical plane or only on the subjective side of life, invisible to physical eyes.

The inner Teachers of those groups have said clearly:

act; it will be pointed out to you when you are ready to walk barefoot and with empty hands. It is the purity of your seeing that will reveal your field of service, and in that place you will find the tools for carrying out the task.

New perspectives are unveiled as human beings free themselves from the retrograde forces that try to keep consciousness turned toward that which is non-essential. People will perceive the crystallization around so many of their consecrated theories. The overwhelmed mind misses the emptiness, but is not able to stifle the sound of truth.

In a spiritual center<sup>28</sup> that is currently quite active, an herbalist doctor was inspired to search in the area surrounding the house where those who were ill were living, for the plants with which to treat them. In addition to finding all the species that he needed, and in a demonstration of the perceptible collaboration of the laboratory vessels<sup>29</sup>, he received the intuitive knowledge of how to process them.

In current times there is a greater permeability between the external and internal parts of the human being's physical-etheric organism. On the one hand, this permeability causes there to be, for example, more skin diseases because some manifestations that used to take place in inner organs emerge on the surface layers of the body. However, and for the same reasons, through poultices, baths, and massages with layered applications of dried herbs or essential oils, diseased states can be modified without the need to ingest medications. This type of treatment applied to the surface of the body and based upon available plants, can be an important tool for service in the times of emergency coming to this humanity.<sup>30</sup>

There are still imbalances, the symptoms of which can also be seen on the skin, that clearly demonstrate that the fiery essence of matter (the fire present in all atoms, in cells, and in the organs of the body) is not acting according to the pattern of perfection that it should follow because of the bad quality of current life on the planet. The Century Plant, a quite common plant in many areas, has healing properties for those sorts of thing.

During this period inner perception and inspiration are the means by which unfamiliar situations can, for the most part, be solved. These abilities are based in the intuitive world, although, in order to be expressed, they are eventually supported by traditional knowledge acquired through school curricula or scientific publications, when usable. But the supraphysical help that must be given to surface humans has much greater implications than the mere provision of material needs. Its goal is to contribute towards the equilibrium of beings and the planet, the material karma<sup>31</sup> of which is one of the densest and most negative in the whole galaxy.

Therefore, one of the tasks for a service group during these times is karmic purification. For this to be correctly fulfilled, there must be inner knowledge of life events, which is not a mental knowing, but rather emerges under the inspiration of the high self.<sup>32</sup> It has, therefore,

31 Material karma. Grouping of positive, negative or neutral effects generated by a particle when it interacts with the material universe that surrounds it. It is the destiny of that particle—be it an atom, a human being, a solar system or a galaxy—according to the dictates of the law of cause and effect. In Biblical language, that law is described through the phrase “man reaps what he sows.” In the current planetary transition this law is being replaced by the law of higher evolution. For further clarification see CREATION (Following the Ways of Energy) and UNVEILED SECRETS (Iberah and Anu Tea), by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

32 High self. Nucleus of consciousness of the being that holds the sense of universality, impersonal love, and group consciousness. It is to be found on levels that transcend the concrete mind; it is also called the soul. See footnote on “soul” on page 74 of this book, and THE BIRTH OF FUTURE HUMANITY, by the same author, become imperative to apply supraphysical laws and gain a balance within the material laws themselves, according to what has been indicated by different Teachers during all times.

Those that are ready for service during this world period know within themselves what we are talking about.

Everything occurs within the silence of the being. The more giving and empty the self becomes, the more it is exalted and unites with its own essence. There is a moment in life when a certain key is turned, unlocking the entry to inner worlds. And even though the entry should close again, the consciousness that glimpsed those inner worlds can no longer deny the existence of what it saw. Sooner or later there will be an advance in that direction.

PART I

Call to Service

Alignment with What is Real

A student had a dream that transmitted the impression of extreme hardship; it reflected critical times that are coming to this humanity and that are already partly taking place. In this dream he was in a hospital and was paying attention to what was happening around him. He could see that there was no more room for patients because they were so busy. Many weakened individuals came to the building, but they were turned away at the door with the information that there were no more beds. They were also being told that several people who were in charge of attending had not come in. The doctors responsible were missing from the two medical consulting rooms, and the need for space was so great that there were patients lodged in those very rooms, because there was no room for them anywhere else in the hospital.

When the student woke up, he asked himself: "What is to be done in such a situation?" The following answer was given inwardly, causing the precipitation of significant impulses that brought about an attunement with reality:

Open yourself to Wisdom and allow it to guide you. True knowledge will be given to you when standing at the head of the patient as you take on the task, and it will not be through theories and systems that have already been established. That which you need will be transmitted to you. Your teacher will be the task itself; your instruments will be your openness and surrender to service.

Concerns about the material consequences of this planetary transition should not be fed, nor should one focus one's attention on the illnesses and stunted growth of bodies, even when faced with an urgent need. The majority of human beings are in a precarious state of balance, and in this period of growing crises need help that comes from supraphysical levels. When an individual fully surrenders self to carrying out his or her real task, everything moves ahead according to a precise and wise order, which in most cases is also hidden.

* * *

The psychic charge that must be transmuted on the planet is very large and is intensifying. Many individuals willing to cooperate with the renewal of terrestrial life are overloaded and do not always manage to transmute all that, through their openness, they pick up from the planetary aura. Thus states of debilitation are becoming more frequent, making it necessary to pay closer attention to silence. In silent environments, which today are rare, people can abstain from adding material to the collective psychic volume that needs transmutation, allowing subtle energy to circulate more freely.

However, for these environments to be created, there must be an authentic silence rather than mere noiselessness. This silence is born through the understanding of a real need in those whose consciousness has reached a certain level of maturity, who are ready for service and willing to set aside superfluous things, such as prolonged conversations. This silence is born in those that can take it on as a work of healing.

The expression of silence and of speaking within human beings is connected to a subtle energy center located in the region of the throat, which has an important role in transferring the energy carried by the chakras<sup>33</sup> to the right side consciousness<sup>34</sup> circuit. This transfer occurs on 33 Chakras. Energy vortices situated in the etheric body. Starting with the period of the current planetary transition, there are modifications taking place in the Earth's energy circuit, in the sense of its deactivation and the awakening of new nuclei. See MIZ TLI TLAN—An Awakening World, by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

34 Right side consciousness. Channel of contact between the conscious self and the soul (or causal nucleus) that is already permeated with monadic energies. It expresses supramental qualities. It is being awakened during this period, bringing about innumerable positive consequences such as the activation of a new energy circuit that takes the place of the old system of chakras and which will draw the spiritual and intuitive worlds closer to a human being's external life. The new energy centers being activated in this way are: the right side cerebral center, the right side cardiac center, and the cosmic plexus. Each one of them responds to a specific vibration emanated by one of the great planetary mirrors under the command of the Hierarchies that guide the evolution of the human race. See the illustration on page 264 of supraphysical levels but has correspondences in concrete aspects; therefore, it is possible to experience interference in habits and external procedures. The energy center is also important in the transmutation of instinctual energies. It regulates the circulation of vital forces in many areas of the body, and if the energy drops to the lower centers—which can happen when, for example, there is a lack of control in the use of words—there is an immediate slowing down and lethargy in the self's higher functions.

This lack of control disturbs and delays the activation of the circuitry of the right side consciousness. The unrestrained need to talk—which many times is about any subject, generally superfluous—allows the energy that has been gathered and directed towards the right side consciousness centers to drain away. Incalculable progress can take place when an individual adheres to silence with dedication and fervor.

A basic law that is especially important during times of transition states that one must never lose sight of one's inner life. Even when life is lived in ignorance and the eyes cannot see the least bit of clarity, human beings have been given the power to aspire, and through this aspiration they must give themselves to that inner life in such a way that there is no doubt the light will reach them. This is why emotional sensitivity must give way to a dispassionate view of the world's pain. Authentic compassion is a state that does not become involved with the lamentations of egos averse to light.

It is impossible to deny the truth that many steps are taken through suffering. Liberating processes that feed the senses or that bring pleasurable experiences are rare or non-existent. Freedom is established through the impulse of energies of renewal that shift crystallized states, uncover hidden aspects, and touch upon points that had remained closed to transformation.

Therefore, those determined to achieve a pure consciousness commit to the development of virtues such as impassivity. They learn that it is necessary to stop struggling against suffering, because when they are called to carry out tasks within the Evolutionary Plan, they are not only called to relieve pain but also to contribute to the dissolving of its causes, which are invariably found in attachments. In critical times such as the present, it is useful and necessary to always be ready to focus upon that which presents itself in each moment. What significance does pain have when one is faced with the fact that real life is restricted by the conscious self, which is attached even to suffering?

It is important to revise the concepts that normally are held about freedom and independence. A portion of humanity seeks liberation from material laws. For this to occur, divine mercy bestows the grace of service to the Plan of Evolution. Personal aspects should not predominate when one has the task of fostering works that, through their unity with sublime worlds, can aid the consciousness in rising up into lofty realms.

The Teraph

Carrying out evolutionary work with the sub-human kingdoms is of extreme importance for Earth's karmic balance. Devic entities<sup>35</sup> and the spiritual Hierarchy participate in this work. In these times groups of human beings are also being specially trained in supporting the evolution of those kingdoms, mainly on the supraphysical planes. Therefore, the service that humans can provide is not restricted to helping their peers but includes all forms of life that coexist on the planet.

35 Devic entities. In this context these entities are elevated nuclei of consciousness that are the custodians of sectors of the Evolutionary Plan. They stay in contact with the archetypes that must be manifested and radiate those vibratory patterns into the material world. The devic entities specifically acquire and radiate impulses for the building of archetypal models on the planes of existence.

One day, when I woke up, I had the following experience:

With my inner senses I could see myself and two other beings—that were not human and seemed made of light—transporting a small vertical obelisk of a shining substance similar to the setting Sun. We carefully carried this obelisk through space and placed it within the top part of a tree's aura.

My consciousness was observing this episode while I participated in it. I could also clearly recognize where it was happening: it was in the subtle counterpart of the physical locality where I lived.

So the obelisk, which emanated a vibration I experienced as sacred, was set in that place, whereupon the vision evaporated. It was then wordlessly revealed to me that this radiant object was a teraph.

In the past I had had contact with some Agni Yoga teachings, transmitted by Morya, where some concise information was given on teraphim. After this I did not deepen my knowledge on the subject; I only knew that it was about concrete or subtle objects magnetized in a particular way to carry out certain tasks by means of their radiation. However, after that short dream, the purpose of a teraph was clearly impressed on my consciousness.

The two beings that participated in that inner experience belonged—by what I could perceive—to the devic kingdom. The teraph I saw in the dream was the result of inner work, in which the human and devic kingdoms participated to support the evolution of the plant and animal kingdoms. What occurred in the following days on the physical plane was extremely illustrative of this fact, as I shall describe below.

Because of my awareness of animal killings perpetrated by human beings, I had begun to put food and water out for the birds of the area. In this way I was offering myself in the balancing of the human karma generated by that slaughter, tendering an energy of union to that suffering kingdom.

Some birds came into the area and returned regularly. However, after the dream their number increased in an apparently inexplicable way, the food having been placed close to the tree that—in the dream—had received the teraph. Dozens of birds of different species and sizes were permanently in the area, as well as others that stayed in neighboring trees waiting for the opportunity to get near the food, which I constantly replaced.

They stayed there, perched or moving around between the vegetation, even when they no longer needed to eat. Rare species, including larger ones, began to come. In the morning as soon as there was light, some were already waiting for the provisions; they would cheep in a particular way, giving thanks. They flew to the nearby bushes and as soon as I withdrew, descended onto the ground in flocks.

When I observed them at a distance from the window, my right side cardiac center would “ascend” and the entire aura of the environment would vibrate in gratitude for these manifestations. A healing energy would flow in those moments. I began to distinguish, even from afar and not having studied the matter, if a bird was male or female and the type of food that best suited them.

This intense phase of a radiatory work with the birds lasted a specific period, after which the potency of the energy diminished; this was also reflected in diminished external activity. As for the tree, it developed in a flawless manner if compared with others of the same species to be found in the region.

* * *

The state of being a teraph is not limited to objects. In reality, when an individual consecrates himself or herself to carrying out the Evolutionary Plan, the bodies transform into true teraphim. In this case they are energized by the Hierarchy and by the self’s deep nuclei. The work of radiation<sup>36</sup> becomes the service keynote sounded by that individual and the energy foundation upon which all external activity is developed.

From this point of view, a group or a civilization can be considered a Teraph of the Hierarchy when their radiation influences the planetary aura in an evolutionary manner.

<sup>36</sup> Do not confuse inner radiation—which is beneficial—with the nuclear radiation we spoke of in the beginning of this book.

This has not taken place so far with the surface's current civilization. Knowledge on the power of the work of radiation is extremely valuable at this time, considering that many incarnated beings in areas of conflict must act silently and invisibly from the level of the spiritual world.

In order for a teraph to be made, the precision of the rhythm of the energy that falls upon it is fundamental. It is therefore necessary to have a stable base that can receive and hold that rhythm. The teraph receives the impact of the energy waves, and its matter starts to vibrate according to a specific tone. Yet if it is not refreshed at regular intervals, its power will gradually diminish until it becomes inactive.

An example of this is known as the "touchstone" of the alchemists. A researcher found a stone such as this, comprised of extraplanetary matter. However, in spite of the genuineness of what was found, it did not contain any spiritual and transformative power because it had already finished its cycle of activity, which is controlled by supra-human forces.

Teraphim can belong to specific Rays<sup>37</sup> or radiate complex energy combinations. This depends on the task that they are to carry out, as well as on the cyclical planetary moment. In this time of transition some teraphim connected to the intraterrestrial centers of Anu Tea,<sup>38</sup> Aurora, 37 Rays. The Rays are basic energies of the cosmos. They are present in all things, from the most infinitely small particle to immeasurable stellar and galactic clusters, on all levels of existence. With their specific qualities they establish the ways by which the nucleus they energize expresses and interrelates with the universe around it and by means of which it will carry out the purpose of its creation. In what concerns humanity, the Rays are transmitted to it by means of Hierarchies called Lords of the Rays based in great cosmic centers. On the activity of Rays in human beings see THE ENERGY OF THE RAYS IN OUR LIVES, by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

38 Anu Tea. One of the seven principal intraterrestrial centers in the planetary cycle that is beginning on Earth. Some of its Mirrors are on the etheric plane of the region situated between Japan and Oceania. Anu Tea's work is especially connected with the devic kingdom and the formation of the individualized soul, preparing lives for the transition from the animal kingdom to the human one; with respect to the human kingdom, it embraces the field of revelatory teachings, together with two other important centers, Erks and Iberah, and with the preparation for rescue. See UNVEILED SECRETS (Iberah and Anu Tea), and THE VISITOR (The Way to Anu Tea), by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

and Miz Tli Tlan<sup>39</sup> powerfully influence the physical plane of the planet. Common humans do not know about them, and it must remain this way so that the teraphim can carry out their roles without any impediment.

Teraphim are precious tools for spiritual service groups but must never be created or commanded by force or by human will. In this way, they will be connected with higher expressions of the energy of active intelligence<sup>40</sup> and when functioning, will not create karma that makes spiritual progress more difficult for those that use them. Therefore, it is essential that they not be mistaken for talismans or other magic pieces.

Some teraphim are used by the Teachers on the inner levels to assist human beings that have made themselves available to cooperate with the Evolutionary Plan. Because they are shaped in subtle matter, they have a beneficial effect on the aura of those that receive them. In this case, they correspond to powerful cosmic symbols and therefore, they channel those energies. In the past these events took place on the physical plane, and individuals who are dedicated to the study of the inner side of life know of the influence that magnetized objects have. Today, however, with the refinement of all planetary life and with the expansion of human beings' consciousness, energy no longer needs to use such dense methods, for it can act more freely on the subjective planes.

To address this matter of teraphim is a delicate business because subjects such as this could reinforce the tendency to superstition. However, to know the laws that govern the manifestation of life and to learn to relate correctly to them are part of the awakening of consciousness and of the service humanity must offer. That correct relationship has nothing to do with the dark manipulation of material forces carried out in the scientific field and in magic.

Human beings produce and use nuclear energy and are gradually penetrating the heart of the physical atom. At the same time, a growing number of people are adhering to primitive practices and rituals, and invocation of entities and forces from low terrestrial psychism. Such situations are related, in spite of not seeming so at first. Regardless of what they are described as, and what they seem like to society, both carry the present civilization into ever more serious chaotic states.

To handily deal with the material world, to be in harmony with supraphysical laws and with the lives that evolve within them, and to cooperate in the fulfillment of the true purpose of existence, it is necessary that the self transcend the state of identification with thoughts and feelings and recognize one's place at a higher level, where the light of understanding dwells and where dis-suasive forces cannot operate.

The growing expression of supraphysical laws is irrevocable; they are practically unknown on the densest material plane, yet in force on levels that are progressively and irreversibly beginning to reveal themselves to the human consciousness. But one must learn to transcend the mental attitude of utilitarianism and instant solutions, in spite of the fact that these laws can be applied to solve problems that otherwise would transform into serious deficiencies for surface humanity. To apply them is a task for service groups in times of emergency—groups that we will talk about next.

Concerning the necessary alignment of consciousness with levels of reality, Morya says: "When Our glass is in the hands of the bearer, this means that dignity must be manifested so that the miraculous glass can preserve its handles."

From Theory to Practice

If we consider the pure idea behind the work of the firefighter, we can understand the attitude needed by those ready to cooperate with the Plan of Evolution during these times of transition.

Even while not knowing what type of situation they will face, firefighters must prepare for all of them. They must not draw it to them, nor create expectations about future events, but must be ready to face what is needed. They must be alert and immediately respond to a demand. In order to do this, they forget about themselves and are ready to sacrifice their lives in order to fulfill the task. Without measure they make their surrender their sign of willingness to proceed.

Many individuals that give themselves in service to the Plan of Evolution have those qualities sufficiently developed that they can act as channels of higher energies; however, they are not always ready to adequately take action on the physical plane.

If a storm is forecast, the prudent person closes up the home before going to work. If the sea level is about to rise, the experienced fisherman pulls his boat higher up on the beach. If the builder knows he or she will need dry wood for their construction, they make sure they have some ahead of time. Why would they leave to the energies that which is theirs to do?

When in the desert, Jesus was prompted by the involutory forces to jump off a high place through their saying that “the angels would protect him and wouldn’t allow him to get hurt,” he responded: “You shall not tempt the Lord thy God.”<sup>41</sup> It takes discernment to recognize that spiritual law and fulfill it. The actions of those who, with a false faith in the supreme power of the energies, behave in an abusive manner are very deceptive, because they are disregarding what is theirs to do rather than the Hierarchy.

We can also extract essential teachings on this matter from the familiar parable of the ten virgins,<sup>42</sup> where the virgins who were not prepared (having no oil for their lamps) lost the opportunity of finding the bridegroom.

Today, to be prepared no longer only refers to the individual evolutionary process, but mainly to the service that can be given. In this case, omission is as harmful as an action taken to serve self. And when it concerns critical times, general need, and severe collective crises, to stockpile goods and protect oneself—hampering the free flow of life—is one of the great limitations to the manifestation of what is unknown and imponderable.

Those who intend to cooperate with the Plan of Evolution are asked to blend the teaching that says “live as the birds of the sky do and the lilies of the valley”<sup>43</sup> with the law “you shall not tempt the Lord thy God.” That is to say, have confidence in divine providence and yet do not fail to carry out what is theirs to do in the cosmic work. The awakened being must extract their particular blend from these two precepts—expressed in mystical language, yet direct and clear—and try to live it.

42 Gospel of St. Matthew, 25:1-3.

43 Gospel of St. Matthew, 6:25-34.

For example, human beings often work hard to save themselves by building shelters against radioactivity for physical protection. However, while doing this they are distracted from the main point, which is not to work for their own material salvation and that of the beings with which they are connected, but to prepare their consciousness for the coming times. They must promptly take on their service to the Plan of Evolution, which envisions the good of all and which will bring forth unpredictable situations and unprecedented solutions.

Some will disincarnate shortly before the times of generalized chaos in order to help others less experienced enter the subtle planes when they too leave their dense bodies. However, when that service includes the material external life, they must know how to deal suitably with the laws of that level as well. In general, peoples' non-preparedness for times of emergency is huge.

For example, there are few that know how to adequately treat physical body traumas such as burns, fractures, or wounds, and thus ease the physical pain of a peer. There are also few that know how to recognize, through intuition or study, the species of the plant kingdom that may be useful for different illnesses or how to give an injection, prepare a healing compress, or assist an accident victim. All of these skills should be routine, but they are not learned well enough. And how many will know about inner healing, which is a much more subtle knowledge?<sup>44</sup>

Especially during this last century the Hierarchy has, through different teachers, repeatedly encouraged human beings to gather together in harmonious groups, to work together in a familial way, to move out of the great urban centers and to cultivate the land, not for commercial reasons, but rather in collaboration with the other kingdoms of Nature. There has not been a lack of warnings. But attacks by dissuasive forces have been many, and most of humanity has given way to these, continuing to live according to the currently disintegrating traditional system of enjoying the benefits and of exploitation.

In this way, an important cyclic opportunity has been lost. Now is the time for emergency measures, and no longer for preparatory educational campaigns. Those that have awakened to the current urgency must be responsive, must take on their tasks, but must also remember that “except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain who build it,”<sup>45</sup> which is another eternal and fundamental law for these times.

The help of intraterrestrial and intraoceanic centers tendered to surface human beings is a reality. The assistance of intergalactic vessels and the Rescue Operation are also accessible to them. Contact with supraphysical laws and with supernature is possible. However, as part of this network of “miracles” it is the responsibility of surface human beings to carry out a task in external life. They must not fail to do this.

Prayer must turn into effective action as a clear response to the urgency of the times and the help that the cosmos is sending Earth. Individuals will recognize the steps they are to take, not through fear or compulsion, but through the purity of their surrender to the Law. They will find within themselves the fortitude needed to move forward on the pathway of service and to joyfully assist their peers and other beings in the sub-human kingdoms.

External life and the deep levels must blend together and become a single expression. Human beings are the link for that fusion to occur, and we are transmitting these words to those who understand.

* * *

There is no assurance that when individuals collaborate with the Evolutionary Plan on the concrete level, they will immediately become a channel for the manifestation of supraphysical laws. However, the possibility of these laws expressing through them does exist, and the restructuring of Earth is based upon that chance.

In general, the gap between what takes place on the inner levels of a being and what this one expresses on the outer is very wide. The task of those who step onto the evolutionary path is to narrow that gap in order to strengthen a direct channel of communication of a pure and crystalline vibration between the inner world and the outer.

An absence of judgment and criticism is necessary if a being's contact with supraphysical laws is to be included in daily life and service on the material planes. A pure heart is also needed, which means the recognition of—and dwelling in—faith, a precious energy emanated by the life-power of the monad<sup>46</sup> and dynamized by the love-devotion of the soul.<sup>47</sup> When they recognize the value and importance of those attitudes, individuals that give themselves to the Evolutionary Plan work side by side with their peers, dissolving

46 Monad. The being's nucleus of consciousness on the cosmic plane. Monads, which is to say, individuals on a deep level of consciousness, are being stimulated in a special way by powerful cosmic energies and are positioning themselves in specific vibratory layers, because during this period important facts concerning the evolutionary pathway of beings are being defined, and there are many steps being taken. In Earth's coming cycle, humanity will have an already awakened monad. See THE BIRTH OF FUTURE HUMANITY, by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

47 Soul. The being's nucleus of consciousness on the causal plane. In a simplified way it could be said that the soul is at the center of the conscious self and the monad is at the center of the soul.

the obstacles to inner realization. They do this through the silent practice of spiritual laws and by the radiation of their willingness to serve.

There are certain discordant nodules, quite vitalized by retrograde forces, which are particularly being dissolved by the energies of healing in rescuable humanity during this period. They are:

- fear
- guilt
- resentment or envy
- possessiveness
- competitiveness
- desire for sensations

The implantation of the new genetic code,<sup>48</sup> or GNA, assists in this healing since its archetypal pattern comes from incorporeal regions of the 48 This new genetic code is implanted in the human being by non-material consciousnesses, the process of which takes place on the subtle planes and is reflected in the physical. Those elevated consciousnesses have full knowledge of the cosmic destiny of the being and act in complete attunement with it; therefore, such an implant has nothing to do with the aberrations perpetrated by terrestrial scientists in the field of genetics. See THE SPACE GARDENERS, by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

cosmos and is free of animalism. But it would be better if the individuals who are awakening to those realities not encourage these nodules either in themselves or the environment. This is why it is important that they should be governors, rather than slaves, of their own thoughts.

In this period in which the energies of synthesis are more present and active, prolonged disciplines to gain control of thoughts are not necessary. What the Hierarchy is saying today is that decided attention should be placed upon the center of being. As has been said many times in the past, this short path towards supra-mind carries immense energy. Those that really take that path and that move forward with an ardent and firm desire for the nucleus of their consciousness perceive the results and efficacy of this practice.

At this time, any excessive focus on material levels of life becomes an obstacle to true service and to the ascension of the being. Those levels will be healed, redeemed, transformed, and transmuted through the activity of supernatural forces and through the intercession of cosmic forces of unimaginable power.

Each time individuals turn towards their own inner self through the purity of their surrender, an incommensurable healing energy draws close to the material strata of the Earth and permeates them with greater intensity. That energy is the essence that gives life to the Hierarchy and the life that sustains existence in this solar system; it is the christic veil that, at this time, blesses the resurgence of a new humanity.<sup>49</sup>

At each instant, in the smallest details, we are invited to hold fast to that energy or to reject it. We are guided into contacting it and radiating it to the world or to push it away from us. It is for this reason that vigilance is an indispensable tool for the being and the groups that walk the path of service and of liberation, most especially so in this phase where the dissuasive forces do not hold back in their efforts to turn rescuable individuals from their true goal.

To recognize christic energy and to unconditionally unite with it is the task of those who walk the evolutionary path.

The Reality of the Groups

One day a student inwardly experienced the following: a very tall building that seemed to have no beginning or end was being violently lashed by a very strong wind coming at it from all directions. The student had the impression that this had never happened before on the planet. The wind was not limited to the outside of the building but also circulated within, penetrating its seemingly permeable, porous structure.

During this experience, he knew that that building represented the spiritual work being carried out at the end of this cycle. The building had a vertical shape and was more than just a simple concrete construction. The vision showed him a massive attack from the elements, which came from all sides and penetrated all levels, sweeping away everything in its path.

The invitation given to the student by means of this picture was for him to pray and give himself to higher levels of consciousness in the most perfect way possible. And this is what he did: with all of his strength he tried to make himself available for contact with higher realities. The scene dissipated little by little, although the images remained engraved in his brain.

The vibration brought by this symbolic scene was similar to that of walking on the edge of a knife. At any moment a purification such as this could begin at a worldwide level. And in order to live through these situations peacefully and with inner assurance, a saintly life is not enough; rather, to really transcend the human ego is also needed.

It is wise and necessary to receive help coming from the inner life, because there are no fixed formulas of behavior for these situations. The inner groups<sup>50</sup> are therefore ele-

* * *

The formation of service groups has already begun. There are obvious signs on the planet of the attunement between monads and the Hierarchy that governs that work. Meanwhile, certain purifications must be complete in the terrestrial aura so that the process can more fully develop. For this reason the retrograde nodules of human psychism are being transformed, because it is only in this way that more elevated expressions can take place through humanity. In order to more expediently serve, the following must also be kept in mind:

- The use of the energy of power<sup>51</sup> will allow certain hidden aspects within it to active on the various levels of consciousness of the planetary universe as channels for evolutionary impulses. In today's Earth environs there are 12 active inner groups, each one a channel for a specific Ray energy. See UNVEILED SECRETS (Iberah and Anu Tea), by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

cease being a potential and become effective tools for the fulfillment of the Plan of Evolution on Earth. Human beings still confuse the energy of power with the self-affirmation of the ego, which brings about ominous consequences.

- The transmutation of energies basically occurs on two different levels: that of the essence, the level at which the evolutionary path of each being and of the whole planet is established, and the level where material life itself develops, which is where the being interacts with the fire contained within the particles of matter. That fire, which also has the capacity to reveal itself as a higher light, must only be used with inner authorization and knowledge.

In the past there were the so-called ashrams, which were groups of beings with the same energy attunement, which generally belonged to the same Ray. They gathered together to carry out work according to the need indicated at the time by the Evolutionary Plan. Those ashrams had a member of the planetary Hierarchy as the central nexus who was normally called master or teacher. As evolution proceeded, these nuclei ascended to higher levels of consciousness, and today they express as inner groups, which on their part are divided into innumerable subgroups in order to attend to the most varied demands. Their field of action must be broad or sufficient to allow the introduction of the future patterns of behavior in human living. Those that have a conscious inner life know of these activities on supraphysical levels.

Once, while in silence, a student inwardly perceived a geometric figure formed of six triangles and understood that it symbolized a conjuncture related to the field of monads and to the work of the inner groups.

Having registered on his brain, the triangles began to move and took the shape of a flower with three petals turned upward.

According to his story, that experience was imbued with the marked presence of christic energy<sup>52</sup> as a symbol of the planetary Hierarchy. That energy, which in a certain sense is connected to the number six and to the Sixth Ray,<sup>53</sup> has a fundamental work to perform in this Earth transition.

The structure expressed in the union of those triangles in the first figure can be used as a basis for the formation of service groups on the physical plane: seven members, each corresponding to one of the vertices of the figure (including the point at the center). Constituted this way, they can help humanity draw closer to the inner groups and open the way for spiritual processes peculiar to the current transition to find channels of manifestation on the surface of the Earth. It is emphasized, however, that these groups become capable of planetary service when they are united by inner magnetic attraction, and not by personal ties or by other material interests or needs.

Its members can shape multiple conjunctures, since in a general way those that are triangular tend to express greater balance. Those conjunctures show the basic lines along which the work is to be done.

Organized like that, the groups can act according to a specific energy or combine several of them. Those decisions are independent of human will because they are linked to the purpose of the task that is to be accomplished. Whether together or not on material levels, the individuals can radiate their inner light, that when united with the rest, helps dissipate the dominant illusion in the outward portion of the planet. Those that work in this way are rare in the world at this time; to know about their anonymous and silent existence evokes gratitude in those who are conscious of their importance.

The declaration of a member of one of those service groups was so beautiful when, on realizing that her limitations were overcome by the aspiration to serve, said: “With all my weaknesses, I know that the Hierarchy is trying to make this instrument that I am into a torch, and I surrender to the task of maintaining that fire. It doesn’t matter if the wood that it touches is green or dry. If it were dry it would quickly start the fire; if it were green, the heat will cause it to dry. The torch itself merely needs to burn, without worrying about guiding the fire.”

There is a huge task for those who look to dedicate themselves to the Greater Goal without any distractions. There is no time to be wasted untangling snarled threads; these need to be set aside, for they will be indirectly transformed as soon as the invisible threads that are the pathways of the inner life are followed.

The Form of Service

When faced with pressing situations, especially during times of emergency, individuals who are dedicated to the Evolutionary Plan often confuse spiritual service with mere outer proceedings.

When a work connected to the Hierarchies is reflected on the material plane, it does not always take on large external proportions. In many cases this would cause its materialization to be unfeasible because it would produce so many attacks from the dissuasive forces. On the other hand, a small and anonymous action can have broad and profound repercussions in the planetary aura. All that is asked of those who wish to serve is surrender, setting aside of self, and an immediate fulfilling of evolutionary tasks—not grandiose material projects. For the service to have quality, it is helpful that individuals renounce their own human tendencies, preferences, and even good intentions. To do the best one can means to faithfully carry out what has been transmitted from within. Both limitations and qualities are known to Those who guide from the inner levels of life, and they have already been taken into account when a task is assigned. For that reason, any who have offered themselves for service do not need to worry about themselves. It is necessary, however, that they dedicate body and soul to complete their part in the Evolutionary Plan—and all needs will be filled.

The work connected to the Hierarchy is carried out by groups of two or more components. These groups are part of other greater ones. In this way, an energy network is formed in the inner worlds and it acts upon the various levels of the universe to which it belongs. Thus it can eventually project itself onto the material plane.

However, it is necessary that the beings that decide to serve be willing and prompt. Only in this way can they become integrated with that network at the concrete level, where obstacles are many. These qualities have nothing to do with the eagerness to take action that is a characteristic of human material levels, but rather are about the willingness and capacity to provide that which, at each instant, true need requires. In this process of moving toward an indicated need, individuals will be able to consciously progress through innumerable inner experiences and expansions of consciousness. However, these must be considered tools of service and not searched out for the self. Vigilance must always be present because the path of those who walk toward the light is very narrow.

Anu Tea, in association with the energies of Fátima and Aurora,<sup>54</sup> reveals to humans the correct position of the human kingdom in the group of lives that make up this planetary universe, and provides them with keys that will allow them to carry out their evolutionary tasks. An intense group work has already developed on the supraphysical levels, but it needs to be reflected in the best way possible in the material strata so that subtler vibrations can be impressed in the physical ether of the planet even before the global holocaust.

In this sense, the following experience may illustrate this:

A student had moved to an isolated habitation where he could live in greater seclusion during a certain period of time. He was attempting to perfect his surrender while at the same time, on the external plane, he performed the tasks and routine housework where he was staying. While he was watering the little garden two or three days after having moved there, he felt his perception being expanded and guided into the subtle area of the place where he was staying. It was late afternoon and the environment around him assisted in that experience. The small area was shown to him as the vestibule of a huge region on the inner planes, full to overflowing with the energy of the kingdoms of nature. A being with no visible form—and yet who was clearly perceptible—drew close to him and, without words, transmitted that a specific experience was taking place in that area and that the active elementals and devas were of a certain type, characteristic of regions uninhabited by human beings, such as woods and forests. For this reason, domestic species should not be planted in the garden; rather, only volunteer plants should be permitted to develop. In this way, a special work of union between the kingdoms of nature and of humans would be taking place.

The energy of healing present in this experience was notable. The student now knew that the being was the governor of the whole region of subtle planes that had been shown to him and which had a counterpart on the concrete plane. When the contact ended, the student's consciousness was transformed and permeated by profound gratitude.

How relative the external world was had become much more clear to him when he saw that such a broad evolutionary work as a union between kingdoms could take place even within a small physical area. It was also evident that these types of events occur in a way almost imperceptible to human beings.

Although evolutionary service at this time is done in group formation, it does not always express as such on the external planes. An inner group can be made up of beings that inhabit different regions of the globe that are far away from each other or on different levels and dimensions. However, although apparently alone, individuals in service need to know that they are part of an inner group and that their attunement depends on the accomplishment of a task whose breadth is definitely unknown to them. If you intend to serve in an evolutionary group work, first learn to live alone,<sup>55</sup> says an inner Teacher.

The urgency of this period is reflected in the degree of aspiration of awakening beings and in their readiness to cooperate in the fulfillment of the evolutionary purpose. Their efforts are to keep alive the flame that gives them impulse, causing them to express the qualities of Divine Life. The true collaborator in the Evolutionary Plan is faithful to that Life, which silently pours its energies over the planet. In order to do this, they must hold firmly to their decision to continue and must also know that they are no longer experiencing normal times.

The form of service is not established by the conscious self, but it is the individual's responsibility to prepare the foundation that will respond to the energy impulses. Devotion and gratitude must be present, separate from what may occur, as well as an immovable faith in the supreme wisdom of the cosmos.

Those who work through inner radiation are not affected by conflicts nor the activity of involutory forces. They turn their attention to the center of consciousness and give themselves completely, empty of self, to the Hierarchy and to the fulfillment of divine will. The transformative power of a sincere surrender is immeasurable. The limitations of the being's bodies are overcome by the omnipotence of the spiritual energy that will flow through them.

To carry out the task of energy radiation, individuals have to transcend the tendency to "want to help." Who or what could know the need of each particle more deeply than the Source that created all? The awakened being surrenders to that Source, holds nothing back, and thus transcends all conditioning. To move beyond one's own limitations and idiosyncrasies is part of the formation of those that offer themselves to the Evolutionary Plan.

A few moments of silence and authentic surrender can balance much that is negative that occurs in the world. For this reason—for the realization of true service—it is important to abstain from superfluous activity and concentrate as much as possible on the completion of the task. It is also necessary that the offering of self should be pure, unconnected to biased commitments or desire for compensation; nor should the imagination be fed with fantasies about the part of the Evolutionary Plan in which one may be engaged. Humility must be cultivated and permeate the whole being.

When one is also doing group work on the material plane, the external rhythm of work becomes very important, allowing the group as a whole to transform into a teraph useful for fulfilling the planetary purpose. Group conjunctures that anchor the Hierarchy's impulses in a pure way on the external plane are rare, but one must not hold back on efforts in this direction. The way in which this can be achieved is by the firm and clear focus of each member on the chosen spiritual goal.

Service is directly related to the fires of the universe. An action, be it on the concrete plane, or on the subtle, is always the movement of forces and energies—a dynamizing of fires in a specific direction. It is not enough to know that selfless action is one of the most powerful tools for transformation; it needs to be used. However, that tool is not promptly presented to the individual or the group, but rather needs to be forged by them. It is aspiration that provides the heat for that shaping.

Discouragement due to difficulties must be banished through a decided affirmation of the Law. There are no impassable obstacles or insoluble barriers when faith is present. Those that recognize the value of cycles, even when immersed in terrestrial chronology, invoke the atemporal power of the Hierarchy and do not allow themselves to be confused by the conditioning of calendar time.

Individuals with a devotional temperament that is not yet sublimated end up wasting precious energy in emotional manifestations that are often nothing more than self-gratification. Those manifestations put them into a state of pseudo-elevation and dissociate them from true service. Detachment, as well as the readiness to advance, must be alive and active. Those that look for sensory experiences, visions, ecstasies, or external rituals are far from effectively embracing the task of liberation of planetary life. In order to accomplish it, one must not fear pain or weariness; one must not hold back in one's effort to imprint the inherence of the cosmos on external life. In other words, one needs fortitude based upon one's own inner nucleus of consciousness.

The task to be carried out does not only address the individual life of the being but that of humanity as a whole. Those that give themselves to the Evolutionary Plan must take upon themselves the planetary transformation that is active at this time. When they "die to self," they are born into the glory of those who know light.

For "how would a man be benefited, if he should gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"<sup>56</sup>

The fiery path of coming into truth does not allow pacts with darkness, half-heartedness, or lies. Those that turn towards the light of the Hierarchy need to know that the fruits of their labor belong to the cosmos, not to the human ego. Those that search for the fire of spirit and only desire to give their lives to truth must dissolve their wish for comfort. Genuine love does not manifest in the middle of hypocrisy.

Each consciousness that offers itself to the carrying out of evolutionary purpose awakens creative energy within itself; this energy is also the basic note of the transition the planet is experiencing. To a deeper degree than in other times, life on Earth is rising up and integrating into a cosmic conjuncture that has long waited for its participation.

Morya foretold the entry of that creative energy into Earth's environs and spoke of the Great Day that, after a long night, would bring forth the tones of the sunrise to color the firmament. But it is always necessary to remember that life exists independent of material foundations. In the silence of surrender the consciousness is transported to a state transcendent of form and guided into a void full of light, a foretelling of greater encounters.

The Contribution of Anu Tea to the Groups

The existence of common terrestrial human beings develops in an uncontrolled way. A slave to their thoughts, they become victims of the luck they generate. Ultimately, Earth's transformation is all human beings' transformation. As a link between the non-material and the material, they must lift up their consciousness to levels beyond the play of dark forces and contact sublime fires. By means of human beings, these fires will be able to imprint their vibration in the planet's material sphere.<sup>57</sup>

Those that volunteer for the Evolutionary

Plan must know that they are permanently accompanied not only by the Hierarchy of light, but also by involutory forces. For this reason vigilance is necessary, especially in these times of intense conflict in the concrete world.

The most direct means for an individual to transcend the level where he or she is vulnerable to the attack of dissuasive forces is to surrender to an evolutionary task that has been assigned to him or her. When individuals turn toward their own ego and its infinite circumlocutions, they open doors in their aura through which these negative forces enter. This can occur through attitudes, many of which have been encouraged by the current civilization that has given itself to the so-called “dark lords”: desire for reward and payment on all levels; the sense of ownership of material goods and people; competitiveness; the search for satisfaction of personal desires, even though these may seem positive and inoffensive; the fostering of vanity and pride; ambition; thirst for power; envy; and scheming. The forces from which one can disentangle oneself through surrender and following the law disguise themselves in ever more subtle ways as one grows in consciousness.

One must not fight those involutory forces; they are impregnated in the substance of the planet and are therefore present in a human being’s conscious and subconscious worlds. They can only be transformed by the precipitation of inner light when the individual contacts it. In search of that light, he or she needs to surrender self in a steadfast manner, for it is only in this way that darkness will be dissolved. The heart must become incorruptible; the will, unassailable. There will be no lack of help—mostly internal—for the forward movement on the path, but surrender, faith, and persistence are needed. Human beings are being freely offered the gift of service in connection with the Hierarchy at this time. A powerful energy of union is present, interconnecting the Earth with far galaxies to worlds that exist in harmony with non-material laws.

To work with the radiation of pure spiritual energy, individuals need to stabilize the vibration of their bodies on the highest level possible for them. For this reason, they need to care in a detached manner for the purity of their physical body, the upliftment of their feelings and desires, and the channeling of their will and thoughts to the supreme goal. It is emphasized that this care, in spite of being a preparation for the ascending path, can take on subtler characteristics as individuals move forward. Therefore, it is necessary to take care that pride not prevail, as it would cause individuals to believe that they have moved beyond certain basic laws.

The help available at this time is immense, and the intensity of what can take place within a second in the life and consciousness of a being is an instance of the power of the spiritual energy that is active on the planet. Even though it is still happening only to a few, conscious human contact with the Hierarchies and the planetary centers is something that must become more generalized in this cycle. This seed must be launched into the planetary aura and allowed to grow roots in the human heart.

Christic energy is basic in this process; but for humans to understand it in its purity and depth, they must be disconnected from merely formal religious manifestations that, although apparently working in its name on the Earth's surface, really secretly serve that which is retrograde.

The christic stream is the conductor of the teachings. For this reason, the Christic Entity<sup>58</sup> was, in the past, called the teacher of angels and of humans. This energy is immanent in each atom of this solar universe, and its pulsation guides particles and beings into higher realization. Therefore, it manifests by means of all the laws that govern the Sun and the planets around it. However, it is the Law of Magnetic Attraction that expresses it in a special way; its work is connected to consciousness itself in all kingdoms. It holds the power of wisdom and the revelation of supreme love. It holds nothing back in the effort to heal, regenerate, and transmute life. It acts imperceptibly and in silence. It is through this energy that the channel of union and collaboration with the various kingdoms is built. It has been beautifully expressed by the plant kingdom through service and harmony. It is essential in human beings' interactions with the animal kingdom, one of those most lacking love on this planet.

58 Christic Entity. Sublime nucleus of consciousness, transducer of christic energy for humanity and for the other kingdoms that are currently carrying out their evolution in this solar system. It reveals itself by degrees to those that draw close to it. This Entity has an extension on each planet of the system that is often thought of as the Entity itself.

During transition phases the development of the processes of consciousness in all kingdoms is greatly accelerated. Thus in a single instant, long periods of deceptions and errors can be balanced; beyond this, it is possible to anchor the positive energies of the following cycles that are already emerging. Anu Tea holds the key of the human connection with the christic energy on Earth concerning the work with sub-human kingdoms; principally with the animal kingdom, which is the link following the human in the evolutionary stream.

Occult knowledge on the birth of the individualized soul<sup>59</sup>—the birth of which assists the monad in overcoming the animal stage—is guarded by the inner archive of Anu Tea and regarding this subject, there is much to be revealed. What has been transmitted to humanity so far is the general outline of a sacred process, which must be correctly focused by it so that it may enter into higher laws; such as, for example, those that will cause it to transcend physical death and

59 While monads are following their evolutionary path in the mineral, plant, and animal kingdoms, they express through group souls. birth. However, in order for human beings to have access to these secrets of manifestation and so that they may creatively participate in them, the heart's portals must have been opened to the christic energy, this energy have been received, and the light stabilized within the self.<sup>60</sup>

When a kingdom rises up to a higher stage, such as should happen at this time with the human kingdom on Earth, all that follow it in the evolutionary chain are elevated with it. They make up a stream where, when one link moves, the others are also moved.

In the same way that humans are being given a more expanded opportunity (as it is called) than ever before for entering into higher laws that will allow them to move beyond physical death and birth—which is to say, enter the state governed by transmutation<sup>61</sup> and the formation of the individualized soul (in the being's movement from the animal to the human kingdom)—, they are also going through deep transformations and an elevation of their occult potential. Anu Tea participates directly in these transformations and elevations as a laboratory where a subtle chemistry is being carried out. It performs this role together with energies that come from other centers and planets, mainly from Saturn, Venus, and the Sun itself.

Anu Tea's call is present within all of those who have given themselves to the Plan of Evolution. It is the call to fulfill cosmic law and for the unification of universes. Since its formation, Anu Tea has acted as the nerve center for extraplanetary energies, anticipating the evolutionary phases that the planet, as a whole, should experience. Today, Anu Tea supports an invisible work of great proportions with which human beings can directly or indirectly collaborate.

The priestly energy is a characteristic of Anu Tea in regards to its manifestation through humanity, although in a different way than what takes place with other planetary centers.<sup>62</sup> The priestly expression in Anu Tea not only occurs in the higher spheres of the cosmic physical universe

(divine, monadic and spiritual levels<sup>63</sup>), but must also be reflected in the lower spheres, mainly in the subtle matter. The priests who work under the energy of Anu Tea have complete dominion over the creation of forms and work in this way for the accomplishment of the Evolutionary Plan. An occult triangulation of this center with Saturn and the Sun is, at this time, the supportive vein of their service. The capacity to build forms is used in a particular way in the rescue of lives from the sub-human kingdoms, for the link of those lives with the group entity<sup>64</sup> that governs them must be maintained during their transfer to other worlds or other dimensions. Those priests

63 Levels of consciousness of the Cosmic Physical Universe. From the vibrational point of view, this universe is subdivided into seven strata, normally called planes or levels of consciousness. These are: 1) divine level; 2) monadic level; 3) spiritual level; 4) intuitive level; 5) mental-astral level; 6) astral-etheric level; 7) etheric-physical level. The structure of these levels is experiencing many transformations, because in the coming cycle the planet will be less dense than today. act in association with the devic kingdom in the strengthening of that link, as well as in the building of domes of protection when the subtle bodies are being rescued. These operations are already occurring in many regions of the planet (as we will see in this book) and in the coming phases<sup>65</sup> will take on global proportions.

The coming times will be glorious times, but a foundation must be prepared to receive them. In the past, innumerable opportunities for humanity's upliftment were turned down or have been allowed to elapse. In spite of this, the great expansion of consciousness marked out for it will be consummated, for on the inner levels of beings and the planet there has been enough response to make it possible. In this way—in the matter of the preparation of beings—there is no benefit in evaluating or coming to conclusions based on appearances.

Anu Tea and the Etheric Rescue Bases

Anu Tea is directly related to the formation of service groups for times of emergency. In the past, its energy directed many beings in the phases preceding the Atlantean holocaust,<sup>66</sup> which was a lesser judgment,<sup>67</sup> as well as during that time and afterwards.

66 This refers to the process leading to the submerging of the ancient continent called Atlantis.

67 Lesser judgment. At the end of certain planetary evolutionary stages, a selection or a judgment of all kingdoms of the planet becomes necessary in order that its particles of life may be pointed in a certain direction according to the level of their vibratory potential. There are some that follow the planetary evolution and continue with it on

Today, Anu Tea is part of an inner energy base by means of which service groups are shaped and can expediently act within the material spheres of the planet. Its connection with an extensive working nucleus that exists in the etheric region of Siberia holds important keys to the Rescue Operation on the concrete planes of Earth. This operation will be more broadly revealed to surface humans in the near future.

In a certain sense, Anu Tea is the entryway for rescuable beings that will be directed towards an existing planetary network of intraterrestrial cities. It is Anu Tea's task to gather these ones up and guide them to their goals. Together with the new stage. There are some that are withdrawn from the planet and guided to points of the cosmos that are at more primitive stages. There are some that have advanced beyond the average and are transferred to more evolved cosmic regions. In a general way, it could be said that the preparation for the coming of a sub-Race triggers a lesser judgment, such as is occurring right now, and that the preparation for the coming of a Race brings a greater judgment. For more information on Races and cycles of evolution, see UNVEILED SECRETS (Iberah and Anu Tea), and CREATION—Following the Ways of Energy, by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

Mirna Jad and Erks,<sup>68</sup> it stimulates the spiritual progress of these beings, as well as that of the ones that work under its aegis.

It is not possible to use human words to exactly describe the reality of the inner worlds. The planetary centers work so closely with each other in an intimate union, and their energies are so interlinked with each other on the different planes—while at the same time maintaining their specific qualities intact—that any description is incomplete. Accounts of these things may eventually serve as an instrument for students to find the inner pathway that will carry them through those portals and as a confirmation of what can be acquired inwardly. That which expresses this stage of development is the consciousness of facing something known, although one has never seen or heard of it.

The radiance of Anu Tea is ever more intensely revealed as Earth's purification moves forward. Certain movements in nature, especially that of water and winds, are directed by the Mirrors of this Center. In that sector, Anu

Tea works in a triangle with two other nuclei: an energy base that exists in the area of the Bermuda Triangle<sup>69</sup> and one of the Mirrors of the Iberah center,<sup>70</sup> located on the etheric plane of Lake Iberah, in Argentina. Iberah directly controls telluric movements and those connected to the element fire. In reality, such Mirrors act in those processes of purification in response to directions given by Solar Hierarchies who, from the Sun, induce transformations that need to take place in the magnetic field and material spheres of the Earth.

Anu Tea's connection with the devic kingdom—which has an anchoring point for its energies in that center, mainly concerning the evolution of the animal kingdom—is expanding in this period of transition and gives service groups a greater capacity for carrying out their tasks. Devic and angelic hosts are under the aegis of Samana's<sup>71</sup> Greater Command and shape the conditions for the consummation of Operation Rescue in the planetary ether.

Those hosts do a large part of the work with fires. Until today, concrete life on Earth is predominantly guided by fire through friction, but most especially in this planetary transition, it is solar fire<sup>72</sup> that is beginning to permeate it. This carries life into more subtle levels of expression. To a lesser degree, cosmic fire is doing the same. This drawing closer of higher fires to the terrestrial plane makes it possible for human beings to contact supra-physical laws and causes the processes of manifestation to also be governed by them on the densest planes of the planet.

As we are in an intermediary phase where the new rhythms have not been completely instated in material spheres nor the old ones been completely removed, an intense transmutation process has become necessary. Anu Tea participates in this work together with the other active centers on the planet, and the service groups integrate into this. Although all tends to mostly take place in an unconscious way for those who have given themselves to the Evolutionary Plan, these must be receptive to cooperating in this work and careful to not get in the way of any of its possible developments on external levels.

From an individual point of view, contact with these fires comes through an expansion in the radiation of the soul (causal nucleus) and at the same time, the formation of the body of light;<sup>73</sup> both developments are given impulse by monadic awakening. The capacity to serve and the power to influence the surrounding universe increase in a being as these higher fires gradually permeate the life. This brings greater responsibility, and in the case where the material bodies respond positively, allows a greater proximity to the Hierarchy.

73 Body of light. In each of its inhabited levels, the being clothes itself in a body. The body of light is its vehicle of expression on the spiritual level and in the higher layers of the intuitive level. It is gradually formed as the relationship between the monad, the soul, and the conscious self is strengthened. It is the instrument, par excellence, of the chistic energy. See THE BIRTH OF FUTURE HUMANITY, by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

As they act under the pulsation of solar fire and cosmic fire, individuals pull a vibration with a greater scope than fire through friction into the ethers of the planet. The beneficial influence of their activity has a transformative power on various levels at the same time. However, since many of those that collaborate in carrying out the Evolutionary Plan do not yet have external bodies that are able to receive the greater voltage of the impulses of solar and cosmic fire, there are two basic procedures that are used at this time by the Hierarchies and Inner Teachers:

- When a greater fountain of energy needs to be poured over an individual, integrating him or her with the task to be carried out and providing a special preparation for completing it, a subtle dome of protection is woven around the bodies in order to protect them from the assault of destructive forces.

In this way, the aura becomes able to acquire, to anchor, and to radiate more powerful energies, as well as to bear higher vibrations for longer periods of time.

That dome is built by devas under the auspices of the Hierarchy that governs that specific task. In the past this was also known as, and called, a state of grace in christic theology.

- A special and generally very brief and intense connection of the being's external bodies with a Hierarchy. Energy like a bolt of lightning is transmitted to the person by the latter, impregnating the bodies with such power that it allows the individual to move forward through more than one cycle without deviating from the goal or the task becoming unproductive. This connection becomes possible through the momentary absorption of the high self into the cardiac center of the Hierarchy governing the task. In other words, it is a grace given to the being, of which some become conscious.

A protective dome can also be woven around service groups. This is one of the tasks Anu Tea is currently carrying out, together with the intraterrestrial centers of Aurora and Lis-Fátima. The manifestation of certain facets of the Evolutionary Plan could not be possible on Earth without that dome to free the being (or the group) from many attacks of the involutory forces, and also allows them to anchor the subtle vibrations of solar and cosmic fire.

Something different happens when an individual, through beginning to express a greater integration with the soul or with the monad, becomes more able to transmute streams of combative forces in the planetary psychic field. Since in the beginning his or her bodies still carry many of these forces, there are moments in which these take a grip with a strength never before perceived. It is as if the dark part of the bodies, with all of its retrograde tendencies, comes to the surface, and the inner energy withdraws.

The keys to moving beyond these moments of testing and of service that are a refining of the bodies for more subtle attunement are surrender, faith, and persistence. It is necessary to persevere, affirming one's adherence to evolutionary law; for it is this vibration that must be incorporated into matter. In addition, one must not "believe" those attacks. Many of the states generated while they are occurring are not real, nor are they anything more than artificial forms, with no life or intelligence, activated by involutory forces. In other words, something that seems to be powerful can, in an instant, show itself to be harmless. In spite of this, these forces must not be challenged.

With the purification of the bodies and the refinement of their attunement, one gradually acquires the capacity to work with transmutation in a more extensive way and learns to stop the forces being transmuted gaining even temporary control over the self.

In addition to Anu Tea, which more directly participates in the building of the protective domes, the energy of the intraterrestrial center of Lis-Fátima carries out an intense work of transmutation in the denser layers of the planetary psychic field and is available to those who turn towards the Infinite in authentic surrender.<sup>74</sup>

The General Situation of the Planet

Innumerable signs carrying the order to begin the final stage of a great work emerge from the inner planes of the planetary life. Hierarchies join terrestrial humans in this work, and the regenerative and reclaiming activity on the subtle levels is intense. The work continues in an orderly manner in spite of the fact that, in the concrete sphere of Earth's surface, profound errors are consuming its vitality. Although degeneration is at a global level, foci of light move silently amongst the chaos. They regenerate life, heal the sick, and ease inner birth. What is occurring—and will occur—on the surface of the Earth comes about through the need for karmic balance specific to each region and culture.

In these times, this work is developing intensely on the subtle planes of Europe and Asia, especially by means of an already active great supraphysical platform that serves the Brotherhood of Light, the Niskalkat base. There are thousands of terrestrial beings that, having been rescued in previous periods, have gone through the necessary healing, purification, and learning. The guiding inner nucleus for their tasks is in this etheric base of operations, which has member Hierarchies and human races from other parts of the cosmos. They work in group format, supported by powerful energy conjunctures.

The help given to the regions that are known at this time as East Europe, North Africa, and some of the surrounding countries (members of Europe) will basically come from subtle planes. There should be no illusions about external and visible visits, given the psychic density of this area and the crystallization of the concrete mental bodies of many of its inhabitants.

The energy radiated by the intraterrestrial center of Lis (by means of its projections in Fátima and two other locations not yet revealed) will allow a very diverse conjuncture with a less dense vibration to manifest in the Iberian Peninsula and its surrounding area, including certain parts of France.

The apparitions of the Virgin, which are known worldwide, in a small locality of ex-Yugoslavia, are also an expression of the intraterrestrial center of Lis. However, the area where these events took place is a rescue base and not one of the faces of Lis,<sup>75</sup> such as is Lourdes and Fátima. At this present time the center of Lis works mainly with the inner preparation of innocent beings<sup>76</sup> for rescue and for the future Earth phase, and it is for this reason that its intrinsic purity emerges so clearly within those who contact it.<sup>77</sup> In ex-Yugoslavia the apparitions caused many to benefit from an inner harmony even during the atrocities of the war there.

75 The intraterrestrial center of Lis expresses in different ways, in different cycles and levels, with varying potency. These expressions are called faces of Lis.

76 Innocent beings. Human beings whose purity and simplicity allows them to continue on, in spite of their suffering and privations coming from the chaotic state of the planet, as in the case of those self-called, the inner nuclei of those beings have been untouched by the activity of degenerative forces.

Only a gray blot is visible at this point on the subtle planes of the region corresponding to Great Britain; there is no movement. It looks as if the island no longer exists, which is to say, it is as if it had already disappeared on the subtle planes, with only its material disintegration needing to occur. The gray color of the blot is more intense in its lower two thirds. As can be seen from this brief piece of information, there are many transformations taking place on all levels of the planet, and these may materialize at any moment.

Because of the involvement of certain governments with the dark forces and with direct connections to black magicians working for them on the mental plane to assist them in remaining dominant on the concrete plain, an intense purification has become necessary, even on the physical level. From what has been foreseen, in the case of Great Britain this will occur through the submergence of the land. However, before this should happen, an extended period of dark covering the sky of that region may occur, which will facilitate the rescue of sound beings living there.

The operation that is developing in the area that corresponds to Oceania, Japan, and a certain portion of the Asian continent is under the governorship of Anu Tea. Here purification will be mainly carried out by means of natural phenomena.

The African continent will almost completely disappear. On inner levels, the fulfillment of its karmic debts through famine and epidemics is perceptible. In this painful and purifying process, the imbalance brought about during the Lemurian<sup>78</sup> period through the degradation of the sexual act will be healed in order that humanity as a whole may enter a subtler cycle after the global holocaust and so that the beings incarnated at this time in Africa may be liberated from heavy ties to matter. According to a higher aspect of the law of material karma,<sup>79</sup> unblem-

79 Through the activity of this aspect of the law of material karma, a redirecting of the destiny of beings becomes possible, thus allowing their adaptation to group and planetary conjunctures without harming their evolutionary process. When a being experiences that which was not foreseen in his or her individual karmic record in order to ished beings that are part of the African continent will be compensated for the excessive suffering they are experiencing today. This adjustment will occur in future stages, almost certainly on another planet that would provide them with an appropriate evolutionary arena.

The contingent of individuals in service to the Evolutionary Plan that are incarnated on the Earth's surface is large, and it assists in all of these areas, acting mainly by means of the body of light. For this reason, on the concrete external level, the being often does not need to take action, but rather must turn inward and pray. However, it is important to know that this is not true of all, especially in certain regions of the Southern Cone, North America, Australia, Portugal, Switzerland, and Belgium, where taking care of emergencies must also be actively carried out on the physical plane by the service groups. In those areas, inner and spiritual preparation of rescuable individuals has been intense.

balance the karma of a group, a race, a nation, or a planet, later on this adjustment brings that being even greater opportunities than what he or she would have naturally had as an individual destiny.

The energy present in the supraphysical base installed over Eastern Europe, with roots in the intraterrestrial region of Siberia, is powerful. From here a broad area of the surface of the Earth is cared for and much is being carried out by the Rescue Operation that is more directly connected to the human kingdom.<sup>80</sup> The Samana energy<sup>81</sup> acts clearly here. It was the power emanated for millennia from Shamballa<sup>82</sup> to Earth that aided the manifesta-

80 There are other nuclei, also connected to the intraterrestrial centers, which are in charge of the rescue of the sub-human kingdoms.

81 Cosmic consciousnesses such as Samana simultaneously project their energy to different points, permeating them with their characteristic energy according to the particular needs of the set of circumstances present there. See footnote on "Samana" on page 113.

82 Shamballa. One of the three basic planetary centers, which is to say, the centers that can directly anchor and radiate the energy of the planetary Logos. Its cycle of activity was from the middle of the Atlantean period up to the present Earth transition, when it withdrew and gave up its function as the governing center to Miz Tli Tlan. In the past, Shamballa's work was clearly described mostly in Alice A. Bailey's books. For information on the current energy conjuncture of the planet, see UNVEILED SECRETS (Iberah and Anu Tea), CREATION (Following the Ways of Energy), and MIZ TLI TLAN – An Awakening World, by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

tion of the important platform that exists at this time in the planet's subtle planes.

While active nuclei in the intraterrestrial and supraphysical part of the Southern Cone are also deeply involved in the spreading of seeds of the coming cycle and in preparing humanity and the planet on all levels for receiving them, the subtle platform in the Siberian region has the specific function of acting through the Rescue Operation. It is for this reason that the vibration of the Sixth Ray, allied to the Seventh, and the Samana energy are so present when contacting this important salvage nucleus.

Operation Rescue is the keynote of the current planetary transition, and the service groups are connected with this. Through it, the Earth will re-integrate with the circuit governed by the Central Consciousness of the Cosmos. Today, a powerful stream of energy coming from a distant point of this galaxy is poured over the Earth, and consciousnesses that discover their next goal within this source tread upon that stream. This assertion may assist in triggering deep insights in those connected with this Operation.

Andromeda and its Entities are also active in the terrestrial environs, bringing keys for the correct manipulation of fires to the members of the inner groups. Knowledge of these keys is basic in order that the awakened fire of spirit may spread its radiance in the concrete sphere of the planetary universe and imprint the sign of the Brotherhood upon it. Fire and Light are what make up the path of service to the One Supreme Consciousness. The keys cannot be made available to all; each being must find it in an individual way through intuitive spiritual means.

If you are inwardly attentive, you will recognize Our Presence and will discover what Love is.

Everything is registered in the Cosmic Mirrors, and the smallest pulsing of a consciousness in response to the Call evokes powerful inner movements. If human beings knew of the power residing in pure surrender, their radiation would transform Earth dust into gold.

The service groups that must be active during times of emergency are part of specific sectors of Operation Rescue. However, it is important to be aware that these groups are essentially inner and that their external manifestation can hide the true combination of energy that inspires them, guides them, and gives them impulse. This may be necessary because the incarnated human race is still quite involved with retrograde forces and has not learned to function in a universal way.

A being is really the representative of the energy of a group. Once this is understood, perceiving the mechanisms by which inner groups express becomes more simple. It may happen that a group that is assisting during times of emergency is made up of members from different inner groups and, even further, from different hierarchical lineages.<sup>83</sup> Those combinations are not set by human desire or through the affini-

83 Hierarchical lineages. When it enters the cosmic physical universe, energy clothes itself with that which supports the purpose of its manifestation. Concerning the Hierarchy on its various levels, there are seven basic patterns known on Earth through which it expresses. These are the seven hierarchical lineages: contemplatives, healers, mirrors, governors, warriors, wise ones/prophets, and priests. Each hierarchical lineage holds within it the energy of all the rest. See STEPS FOR NOW, by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

ties of the three-dimensional world. They are established in the inner world by the monads that respond positively to the Call of the cosmic plan and by the Teachers and Hierarchies that guide them. However, in order to be correctly established, they depend on the degree of openness to the external consciousness of the beings involved in their manifestation, as well as the karma of these beings.

It is not simple to put together combinations of events on Earth's surface that support service at a planetary level. In order for them to emerge and not immediately perish at the first attack of dissuasive forces, a central vortex that keeps them cohesive and allows them to grow is necessary. That vortex can be a Hierarchy in a physical body or monads already liberated from the law of material karma that can be the vessels of the energy of the Hierarchy that governs the task.

Those that are connected to the life of the inner worlds will recognize the silent and invisible presence of the solar essence, unharmed within the chaotic movements of the involuntary forces. That supreme energy of love—all embracing, omniscient, and omnipresent—will ever more greatly permeate beings, particles, and the life that make up this planetary universe. In differing degrees every atom in the terrestrial orbit is already receiving its magnificent healing power. Even those who, through not being able to continue their existence in the rhythms that are to be implanted in the planet's coming cycle and who will be transferred to more primitive planets than Earth, are being touched by it. They will hold on to this touch within themselves like a seed that may germinate in future stages of their evolution.

That energy of love, which is pure wisdom, does not judge, but knows the real place for each being in the cosmic universe. Through it, many positive transformations are occurring, easing Earth as much as possible of its heavy debts to evolution. Each being that opens to that energy allows a healing spring to spread through the inner planes of planetary life. It is fundamental that the members of the service groups should know this, for the attitude and the attunement of those that are active is more important than any such action.

Planetary life is being healed, and it will be cleansed of its dark past. The greater part of this work must be mediated by humanity when it connects and becomes one with the solar essence. Even though it seems that it is few that open themselves to take this on, they must not fail to do so, for their action may determine many evolutionary events of which, most times, they are unaware.

Niskalkat: in the Asian Ether

Niskalkat's<sup>84</sup> work is extensive. In the area of the planet's concrete sphere, this base predominantly is active on the first sub-plane of the physical-etheric, on astral, and on mental planes.<sup>85</sup> It carries out an important role in the fusion of the levels of consciousness, and in the

84 We have adopted this spelling for the subtle base's name because, in our language, there is no precise way to represent its designated sound. Its vibration on the etheric plane sounds like something between Nilskalkat and Niskalkat.

preparation for the rescue of subtle bodies and permanent atoms<sup>86</sup> of beings.

However, its activity at this time mainly takes place in the first physical ether. It stretches over most of Siberia as well as regions of China and Mongolia and has the advantage of the results of the work done by the radiation of Shamballa in the past, when the energies of this center, anchored in the etheric region corresponding to the Gobi desert, were fully active.

One of Niskalkat's tasks on the first etheric sub-level is to instantly take in a large number of rescued beings, which can occur during times of catastrophes. In general, seconds before these transpire, many are withdrawn from their physical bodies and directed to that base. From there, after having their subtle bodies harmonized and healed, they are taken to intraterrestrial cities in a previously organized operation.

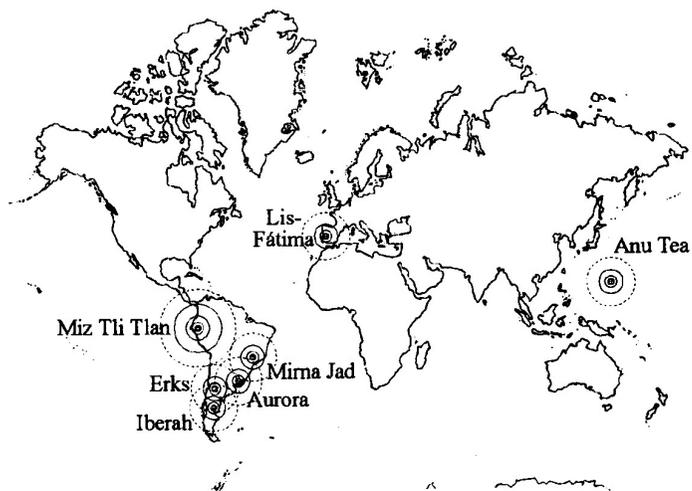

The outlined area corresponds to the region on the etheric plane where Niskalkat's activity is centered. The triangle indicates one of the principal nuclei of this important base, by means of which it connects with the planetary centers and with intraterrestrial civilizations.

cated area, but rather extends throughout the Earth in its various dimensions.<sup>87</sup>

This figure shows the seven principal planetary centers that are active in the cycle that has begun at this time. Miz Tli Tlan is the governing center and together with Erks and Aurora, forms the energy triangle called the greater centers. By means of this triangle the energy of the Earth's Logos flows more directly to the other centers and to all of planetary life. The circles indicate special areas of radiation on the part of the more important Mirrors of the planetary centers. However, it must be taken into account that their work is not restricted to the indi-

87 In addition to the field of activity of the planetary centers indicated on the map as concentric circles, there are specific magnetic bands where the energy of particular centers expands, creating a sort of energy belt around the Earth. About this and the work manifested by the center of Lis- Fátima, we later describe the data acquired by an Italian geometry specialist who studied the geographic positions of some Marian sanctuaries and announced what a Catholic journal called a series of coincidences. Using very detailed maps of a scale of 1:25,000, he demonstrated the existence of correlations between these places, which are channels of special energies. As has been said, they were the focus of activity of extraterrestrial and intraterrestrial vessels that, through subtle projections of the image of the Virgin, assisted in the development of needed devotional aspects in many thousands of people. The same scientist found evidence that the parallel that goes through Medjugorje, in ex-Yugoslavia, is the same one that goes through Lourdes, in France, with an approximation of 999.44 per 1000. He also established that a correlation exists between Fátima, in Portugal, and Akita, in Japan, showing the following relationship: the latitude of Irene's Cove (the location of the apparitions in Fátima) is 39° 38" and Akita is 39° 42". Thus he demonstrated that four important Marian locations are situated close to the 40th parallel of the Northern hemisphere: Lourdes and Medjugorje, on the 43rd parallel; Fátima and Akita on the 39th parallel.

Current surface of the planet with the diagram of the energy triangle formed by the supraphysical centers of Miz Tli Tlan, Anu Tea, and the etheric base of Niskalkat. A powerful energy vortex is formed by this conjuncture, making it possible for the Earth to have significant extraplanetary interconnections during the transition phase in progress.

Miz Tli Tlan, Anu Tea, and Niskalkat form an energy triangle that is fundamental for the fulfillment of that healing work. By means of this conjuncture, extra-systemic and extragalactic energies can penetrate the Earth's orbit and be held in the material strata to a degree that would otherwise be impossible.

Niskalkat is also active in the terrestrial sphere through a great contingent of beings that, from the level of the subtle planes, contact rescuable beings. This contact happens mainly during sleep and prepares those beings for the moment in which the rescue will actually occur on the material planes. It is important to keep in mind that although rescue is essentially an inner process where the monad really steps onto the path of return to the Cosmic Dwelling Place, in many cases it also includes the concrete planes when the individual needs to be rescued with one of his or her material bodies.

There is a great deal of fantasy surrounding this subject and many thoughtforms have been created about the final call of end times. But it is only through the viewpoint of human and planetary evolution that a correct understanding of this sacred ceremony becomes possible. It signifies that divine life can draw closer to the subtle Earth levels and spiritual life will be fully implanted on its surface.<sup>88</sup>

When information mentions countries and frontiers, one needs clarity and detachment, because supraphysical reality is not connected to nationalism or political ideas characteristic of a civilization dominated by the illusion of ownership and separateness. The world of energies is organized according to vibratory patterns, not power plays. Also, what takes place in the regions of the physical plane that correspond to these subtle realities cannot sully them. It only establishes to what degree those regions can be permeated by the balm emanated by the inner planes and how that balm can transform them. This is why it is recommended that one contact the essence of life, which is inner, rather than go by the Earthly appearances that are twisted by human darkness.<sup>89</sup>

To gain an understanding of the difference in values between an evolved civilization and the current state of the terrestrial human, we can cite an event which took place some years ago. While going out camping with some friends, a young man suddenly disappeared, leaving no clues when, during a hike he was separated by only a few yards from his group. All efforts to find him were to no avail, and there was no explanation that brought clarity to the situation. Some time later, by means of a member of the Alpha and Omega Council<sup>90</sup> incarnated on the physical plane, we came to know that the youth was transferred to an intraterrestrial civilization, which brought about a great advance in his evolution. In addition to this person, there were many similar cases that occurred during that period.

When asked about the reasons for this transfer happening without previous notice or leaving any evidence, this member of the Council explained that, in spite of it being the choice of the inner being of the rescued individual and although there was Spiritual Hierarchies involved, terrestrial civilization was not yet ready to accept <sup>90</sup> Alpha and Omega Council. One of the more active nuclei that gives impulse to the consecration of the evolutionary purpose on this planet. Its field of work is cosmic and it is not restricted to the terrestrial orbit. Therefore, it dedicates special attention to the Earth in the current transition and it is present in the aura of the Earth as a group of twelve consciousnesses that work in diverse levels. These consciousnesses have complete inner knowledge of all events that occur on the planet and can, in some cases, incarnate.

it and to participate consciously in it. At the same time, those that are connected to the beings that have these experiences, while often experiencing difficult and painful moments concerning the disappearance, are—on the inner planes—aware of the process and even collaborating in it.

One can see, then, how different inner life is from external reality. While the latter is held together through threads of attachment, jealousy, ownership, and incomprehension, the former emerges out of the freedom of impersonal love that encompasses all and knows the greater destiny of each creature.

Now, more than ever, is the time to firmly take on the inner goal. While walking towards the mountain, the traveler is often distracted by a passing view and walks parallel paths because of an as yet immature understanding of life. However, upon reaching a certain level and state that is the abyss that separates human life from transcendent life, a leap is necessary. This must be done without external support or confirmation about what will be found on the other side; only an inner certainty that one must continue drives one forward at this stage. If the leap is taken, a new power will emerge in the center of one's being: a power that will unveil the secrets of the Path. One will see that all in the past was merely the preparation for the generosity of spirit of what one now begins to live. And with a greater purity, one will radiate the light of the Inner Worlds.

PART II

Elevating Consciousness

Basic Energies during this Transition

A human being's etheric body is made up of energy currents of different vibratory gradations. These currents form a subtle network through which different fires are filtered from sublime planes to the cells of the dense physical body, nourishing them with their potential.

The monad's life force maintains its existence on the concrete plane by means of that etheric web that, besides being the mold for the dense body and keeping the atoms cohesive, channels creator energies.

In a beginning evolutionary phase, this life force expresses simply as vital heat when manifesting in matter and causes the incarnated being and its bodies to become active. All cellular and physiological mechanisms are activated through this impulse, and it is for this reason that they maintain inter-relationships with planetary and cosmic rhythms.

The level at which the being's consciousness is polarized and the degree of awareness establishes the type and quality of the vibrations that will be channeled by its etheric body. In this way, as evolution takes place, he or she no longer only carries fire by friction, characterized by activity; other fires begin to be present or active within.

The whole cosmic physical universe, from the divine to the physical concrete level, is qualified by fire by friction. However, if we look at each level separately, we will see that they channel the vibrations of frictional, electric, and cosmic fires in differing degrees. Just as a Ray has various sub-Rays, when a fire is the basic quality of a plane of consciousness, it too carries the other fires within itself.

As the being develops, the monadic life force begins to expand its vibratory range and expresses on the material plane not only through fire by friction (which supplies vital heat and the governing impulse of the cellular rhythm and activities of the bodies), but also through electric or solar fire, and later through cosmic fire.

Electric fire has polarity traits and is directly connected to the christic energy of this solar system. When the etheric body has this fire activated within it, it becomes the container for this essence—the phase when it is permeated by the body of light. This brings about transmutations in the being, which causes the monadic life force impulse (at first converted into a vital-caloric potential) to transform into a union with life, or compassion.

This compassion is the expression of the christic essence in its first degree of liberation. Moved by the purity of the compassionate impulse, the being can unconditionally give of himself or herself, for there is a recognition of the essence of life pulsating within all things. The cells of the material bodies integrate with this impulse, which comes from the burning of the etheric screens that held the light imprisoned within. Through that burning, the caloric-vital state also transmutes at a cellular level.

In other words, the state of compassion is achieved not only by the being's consciousness, but also by the consciousness of the cells that make up the bodies. It is through this state that the material plane is redeemed and prepared for gaining the second degree of liberation of the christic energy, the expression of which is pure love.

It is known that certain physical bodies, which have been inhabited by beings that have achieved states of liberation, do not deteriorate after the disincarnation.<sup>91</sup> In a way that is unexplainable under natural law, they remain intact and integrated so that they act as teraphim, radiating a vibration liberating to the atoms that make up material life on the planet.

The third degree of liberation of the christic energy can be called wisdom.

91 As examples we can cite Saint Claire of Assisi, Yogananda, and Charles de Foucauld, among many others representing different degrees of liberation of christic energy

It is only when the consciousness expands in advanced Initiations<sup>92</sup> that the first three degrees of liberation of the christic energy are fully achieved. In this enterprise the etheric web that covers the life essence on the various planes of consciousness catches fire, and a direct channel between the monad and matter is completed. The monadic fire then burns fully on all planes of the cosmic physical universe, impressing the sign of fulfillment or realization on them.

Before this, the states of compassion, love, and wisdom are activated to varying degrees, announcing the sublimity of the consummation that awaits the being treading the cosmic path.

92 Initiations. Expansions of consciousness energized by supramental sources. Initiations are part of humanity's evolutionary path; at some time all go through or will go through them, for these are the means and the tools of union between the various nuclei of consciousness of beings, and between them and the universe. During this period, without the knowledge of the forces of chaos, an intense evolutionary stimulus is assisting in important advances in human consciousness and, on the inner planes, guiding many individuals through the Portals of the Initiations. See CREATION (Following the Ways of Energy), and UNVEILED SECRETS (Iberah and Anu Tea), Editora Pensamento, and THE MYSTERY OF THE CROSS IN THE PRESENT PLANETARY TRANSITION, Irdin Editora, by the same author.

It is emphasized, however, that the coming of these states does not follow a chronological progression; they are gained gradually and simultaneously by the being as he or she moves up the initiatory pathway. They have a relationship with the three divine Aspects and with the three basic fires of the universe.

Monadic life force
State	Divine Aspect	Predominant Fire	Degree of Liberation the Christic Energy
Vital-caloric activity	Activity or Third Aspect	Frictional	Latent
Compassion	Union or Second Aspect	Frictional and electric	First
Pure Love	Union or Second Aspect	Electric	Second
Wisdom	Magnetic power or First Aspect	Electric and cosmic	Third
Fulfillment or realization	The three aspects unified	Cosmic	Completion of the previous states

The service groups that are to take action during times of emergency will function as channels for the higher fires, which will gradually burn the etheric webs that imprison light within atoms and cells. They must therefore not expect outer results, because their principal activity will be within the field of energies, and in most cases the process will be done unconsciously.

* * *

One of the service groups' basic work during this transition, be it in the concrete strata of life or the subtle levels, is to allow the christic essence to emerge. This essence, also called christic energy or solar essence, must externalize by means of the planet's kingdoms, and therefore through human beings as well.

In this solar system there is no way of disconnecting christic energy from service, from the ascending path, and from the consummation of the evolutionary purpose. It is the means by which all particles of this system move toward realization; it is the essential synthesis of all that exists within the environs of this Sun.

The more that individuals and groups willing to serve are free of rigid structures, are truly open to that which is High, and are living in attunement with spiritual laws, the more they will be filled with solar essence, both externally and internally, becoming channels of its expression.

That which was esoterically called The Reappearance of the Christ is already taking place. However, until the purifying planetary phase has achieved a more advanced stratum than at present, this reappearance will not happen outwardly, because it is through life on Earth as a whole that this energy must express in this ending cycle and not as a single being, as has occurred several times in the past. Although there will be those amongst humans that manifest it more purely, in this period its externalization must be at a global level.

And what signs will this energy bring? How can they be identified? Those that persist in looking for them outside of themselves will be confused, for dissuasive forces at this time disguise themselves and speak beautiful and apparently spiritual words. It is in the center of the being that this essence must reveal itself. It will be unmistakable, pure, like a powerful spring, bringing the impulse to serve, to give of the self, to union with life, to integration with greater milieus, to the stratum that supports the inner group to which one belongs.

The reappearance of that energy, even announced in different ways by the religions of the world, corresponds to human beings drawing closer to the planetary Hierarchy in an irreversible manner and of humanity's adherence to the evolutionary purpose. This is one of the reasons for the judgment that is currently taking place on the planet in all kingdoms.

Individuals and service groups must not be confused by the play of appearances, because in the middle of the destruction of the phenomenal world that energy will triumphantly re-emerge and will ever more intensely be realized during the coming cycle. However, it will not be perceived except by those who unite with it internally.

It is necessary to again emphasize that this union does not depend on external religions, the latter being clearly sold out to the involutory forces at this time. That union is secret, intimate, and is the deepest link of the being with the supreme life that pulses within. It is free of forms and yet transfigures them. It is free of concepts; yet it redeems them. It is silent, yet speaks with many voices.

Service during times of emergency will demand firmness, resoluteness to continue, unshakeable faith, and commitment to inner perception. But through the action and grace of the solar essence that which is heavy becomes light and what is dark becomes translucent; through it that which dies is reborn fulfilled. “For my yoke is pleasant and my burden is light”<sup>93</sup> was manifested by that energy two thousand years ago through Jesus. That truth can be lived by those who, through forgetting self, give themselves in glory to the supreme consciousness.

Joy fills the inner being of those who recognize the reality of that promise within themselves. As the solar essence expands, brings union, lightness, and serenity, obstacles melt away, suffering disappears, and pain transforms into upliftment.

By means of individuals and groups in service, much can be done—more than can be imagined at this time. For this to happen, their hands must be empty so that they not hold on to, nor want to direct and control, that which passes through their hands. Life is a continuous flow and beings must travel upon its stream. They will be carried to distant luminous worlds from where they will bring seeds of renewal to the Earth.

May they be firm when faced with struggles and may they never doubt—not for an instant—the help, the endeavors, and the presence of the Hierarchy, which silently and permanently accompanies each step they take.

An elevated consciousness, which is a member of the Cosmic Mirrors, left instructions<sup>94</sup> in one of its Earth incarnations for those walking the path of surrender and pure service. Specifically one of them, written in a mystical and poetic way, can be of real help to those who will be faced with various choices during times of acute chaos and who repeatedly must affirm their vows of adherence to law and spiritual life:

“Let nothing disturb you,
nothing frighten you.
All things pass,
God does not change
Patience
achieves everything.
Those that have God
lack nothing.
God is sufficient.”

Monads and the Final Rescue

Part of the task of service groups active during times of emergency is operations on the material planes of the planet. However, each and every action must have its roots in the inner worlds. Those groups will absorb the radiance and the power from those worlds that will energize and guide them in their external activities. The members will come face to face with the Teachers in those worlds.

The call of the Hierarchy at this time is sounding strongly in the ethers of the planet and there are those who respond. However, the tension in the various spheres of the Earth's magnetic field is great. Knowledge of the laws of the physical plane will be helpful in carrying out the task; but what is most important is faith. Faith is what allows supernatural laws to be active when the chaos on the surface of the Earth seems to prevail.

May those self-called<sup>95</sup> who are awake to the preeminence of these times vibrate at the required level of power. May supreme love fill them and expand, healing their brothers and sisters amidst the disharmony and causing good to emerge.

Worrying about the future is not recommended. However, those who do not perceive the signs of possible directions they can take are not giving true service. Just as it is necessary that one prepare things beforehand for one's party invitees, it is also necessary to prepare beforehand for fulfilling the Evolutionary Plan's tasks.

It is very true that, mostly during the last century, inexact information was trans-

95 Self-called. Members of humanity who were willing to be incarnated during this period in order to cooperate in the transition of the life of the planet. Yet, because of the density of the terrestrial material planes, not all those self-called become conscious of their real task mitted to human beings about what are called end times. Such information, generally coming from the terrestrial astral plane, continues to vibrate in the collective subconscious and may emerge in disguise as inspired messages, or is subliminally influencing actions. And yet it will not be through a lack of well-founded and correctly aligned warnings and suggestions that some beings of goodwill will be unprepared when chaos inevitably comes into their lives.

In order for an authentic, conscious, and pure contact with inner Teachers to be established and reflected in an individual's physical brain, he or she must have certain understandings, and repudiate that which draws him or her away from the evolutionary goal. Amongst these understandings are the ones basic to all, unconnected to what level they reside at and to what Ray they belong. These are based on universal law and are part of the path of Initiations. Therefore they are connected to pure service. Even though many already know about their importance, those that really put them into practice are rare. These understandings are:

- Strive to unite with the essence, and not with the form through which it expresses. The ardor of that search must impregnate thoughts, feelings, and actions. It must permeate the breath and carry Life to the cells. Thus the being will impersonally radiate that Life to the whole planet.
- Cultivate humility, devotion, and surrender.
- Abstain from talking about what is transmitted inwardly. Individuals must know whom to share their experiences with, making that a part of their task or as a way of obtaining guidance from a more experienced brother or sister.
- The path of light is not tread in half measures. Inner vows must be reaffirmed and shadows rejected.
- Do not desire inner contact in and of itself nor try to establish how this will happen. Work must be carried out based on faith. Being conscious of inner contact will come as a result of the purity of surrender and the needs of the task to be carried out.

* * *

During times of emergency, service groups will work in different sectors of planetary life. However, their efforts will be mainly directed toward rescuable beings, since the rest—which are the majority—will be helped in an indirect manner by other divisions. However, because of the precarious global situation and the inertia in which most live, some will have to take on those various tasks that are not being carrying out by the ones assigned to them. In this way, an attitude of detachment, of deep and true love, and compassion must be the pointer of the members of those groups. This will allow them to recognize which is the correct response in each moment—with all beings, humans, and infrahumans that come to them or connect telepathically with them.

During a teaching transmitted to us, we were told that at the sounding of two signals “do not lift up those who have fallen, for their strength will not be enough to continue.”<sup>96</sup> Such an assertion is valid for the end times of this cycle, which are already being acutely experienced in many places on Earth. We must therefore be attentive to it.

The fall is part of the human being’s path since entering this planetary universe. Through it a number of individuals will learn to give up free will, committing to a greater will that exists within themselves. However, when the moment of a judgment arrives, beings choose the level of consciousness to which they must go. For this reason, nothing is gained by trying to uplift them, for the next stage of their evolutionary path has already been decided upon. In this case, a fall is simply a re-dimensioning of the creature’s situation according to its real needs.

Many will be transferred to karmic planets more primitive than the current Earth, and there they will continue their existence.<sup>97</sup> They will thus have a favorable field in which to develop positive aspects and attributes within themselves, as well as to serve. For they will be placed in a state of consciousness and a vibratory field that corresponds to them. Also, there are those who, having completely given themselves to the forces of chaos, will have their infra-monadic nuclei disintegrated so that the monad can retreat to primordial states of evolution and can regain the ascending path. In these cases, the evolutionary process of the Monadic Regent<sup>98</sup> goes through a reversal. Depending on the stage reached by the other monads that are a part of it, they may enter a sleep state to wait for the ascension of the sister monad that needed to retreat. The energy of the Regent will thus be mainly channeled to its extension that returned to primordial phases.

By means of an analogy we can understand the situation of this Regent as that of an

98 Monadic Regent. Also called the Eighth Monad, Regent Avatar, or Cosmic Human. It is the deepest central nucleus in a human being’s consciousness. From it emanate twelve extensions known as the seven monads and the five principles. Monads have their evolution in the material universe, while the five Principles mediate the being’s life within the non-material universe. See UNVEILED SECRETS (Iberah and Anu Tea), by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

atom that experienced a momentarily diminished potential. However, for the One Life such a withdrawal is really a step forward, because this action will enable the Regent to regain the path of law, disengaging from being aligned with what is unreal, which is to say, with that to which it is no longer attuned.

The fact that a human ego could give itself to retrograde forces to such a degree that dissolution of the being's infra-monadic nuclei and the return of the monad to primordial stages become necessary (so that certain evolutionary courses may be followed) is ultimately the result of a condition in the Regent. It means that the Regent was unable to sufficiently vitalize the monad, and the latter was unable to strengthen the individual soul enough to get the egoic vortex to move in an evolutionary direction. In the great cosmos the development of existence is a continuous learning process and the apparent retreat of these monads is guided by the infinite wisdom and compassionate love of the One Life.

Concerning the monadic group to which the retreating monads used to belong, the disengagement is as natural as when—on the physical plane—there is an exchange of electrons between atoms and molecules. Many rearrangements are being carried out at this time in the monadic field of the Earth Universe, where each particle is finding its new place.

It is the responsibility of those that offer themselves to the Evolutionary Plan to cultivate detachment from all that exists in the world of forms, so that the supreme energy may guide their steps and so that christic love, the fiery essence of this solar system, can flow through them in a pure form. Compassion must always be present. However, true compassion, which manifests love and wisdom, is not sentimentality. The latter is a dark stream of expression of the dissuasive forces. Everything becomes clear to the student under the light of faith and through keeping a firm resolve. He or she must walk in that light.

Qualities of the Soul and Moments of Pain

Human beings get accustomed to painful situations and it is not uncommon that they become attached to them. These are often tools for an expansion of consciousness<sup>99</sup> and are used by supreme wisdom like a necessary evil, since most human beings from Earth's surface are not ready to move forward in any other way. However, pain must not be pursued. It is the essence of teaching that must be contacted; and because it is immanent in life, it is life itself that is the Great Teacher. Those that have given themselves to the Evolutionary Plan walk in that essence, and there find indications for what they are to do, how to do it, and also the proper moment in which to take action.

Service is born out of a being crying out from the need to give self only to that which is Supreme, and not just through the urge to provide what is needed. While individuals still predominantly function through the desire to be physically active in service, even when this is positive, they will not become real collaborators in the Evolutionary Plan. Those than genuinely give of themselves do not try and do anything through self-motivation, but rather simply obey guidance emanating from their deep consciousness. In reality, they become the experience of Life, and in this sense, transcend individuality. Being individual is merely a stage of the evolutionary process.

Pure love emerges in those who thus give of themselves. If each human being could experience that love for even an instant, in just moments the surface of the Earth would be transformed and would show its real face, very different from the present one. But this will not happen until the current purification period is over. Now is the time to balance accounts with the past and enter a stratum of greater spiritual light.

Each human evolutionary stage shows specific characteristics. These are related to the planetary and cosmic energy conjuncture that is in force, and indicate the attributes to be developed. The soul's awakening and maturing, for example, were stimulated by the christic energy during the last two thousand years, when it was present in the Earth's orbit in a very specific manner.

Amongst the inherent qualities of the soul, the sense of group and of universal love are basic. These qualities are reflected in ideas that were broadly presented to humanity in the last cycle, such as, for example, goodwill, altruism, and fraternity. Even though only a relative minority expressed these ideas, some individuals moved beyond them, because with the effective beginning of the planetary transition, awakened souls decisively turned toward higher levels and began to transfer to them. Thus, that which was trying to elevate humanity to patterns that would allow it to reflect the life of the soul became anachronistic. The goal that the rescuable individual is being presented with at this time is that of manifesting more elevated and powerful energies. These are originating in their inner group, which is contacting fires of a spiritual and divine vibration, way beyond the above-mentioned qualities, and incorporating them to perfection.

The energies present in the ideals of the closing cycle must be included in and synthesized within the being. They will be the foundation that, transmuted, will unite with the new impulse, but stronger, more effective, and suitable for the current planetary stage. This will bring human beings greater possibilities for disinterested and impersonal service.

Even though this fact is a reality in levels above the concrete mind, it cannot always be reflected in external life because of the tendencies and retrograde habits in individuals' external bodies. However, we are not living in normal times, but rather critical ones. Although imperfect, human beings can transmit sparks of their immanent divinity to those who need them. Opening to service, they can overcome the inertia impregnating their bodies, move forward, and draw grace to themselves with their decisiveness and surrender. With grace will come energies of the spirit and their transforming force, their power to destroy obstacles, and to attract the good.

Therefore, in order for individuals to effectively and expressly collaborate with the Evolutionary Plan—and not to merely aspire to do so—they need to decide to move from where they are and walk towards the light. In this way they generate an energy vortex with enough power to establish a stable contact with their inner group, thus coming to be guided in accomplishing the task given to them.

A being's drawing close to his or her inner group is part of the preparation for the First Initiation.<sup>100</sup> This will be the minimum level attained by all of humanity in the coming cycle on Earth, and therefore aspirants are being rapidly guided toward it through service.

100 First Initiation. An expansion of consciousness where the soul gains greater control over the individual's external actions. The First and Second Initiations are preparations for the Third, where the soul takes complete control of the personality. See CREATION (Following the Ways of Energy), and THE MYSTERY OF THE CROSS IN THE CURRENT PLANETARY TRANSITION, by the same author, Irdin Editora.

Those who dedicate themselves to carrying out the evolutionary purpose must penetrate the mystery of communion. They must contact the immanent divinity within this universe—the ultimate essence of this solar system—and they must allow themselves to be absorbed into it. Two thousand years ago, when the solar essence entered terrestrial consciousness through the intermediary of one of its messengers, a door was opened for humanity that would allow it to fully unite with that essence. In the event known as The Last Supper, this possibility was affirmed; also revealed there was the fact that some would accomplish this union.

In order to interact with this essence, human beings no longer need external rituals. In this solar system the essence of love, wisdom, compassion, and cosmic magnetism is omnipresent; there is no particle where it is not to be found, although many times only with the potential for it to be awakened and dynamized. This whole systemic universe is its body and the vehicle of its expression. Therefore, union of the individual consciousness with the solar essence is to be sought in each instant, and not only in fortuitous moments or specific times through crystallized rituals drained of energy.

The awakened being does not cling to artificial things. On the contrary, he or she always tries to set aside adornments purchased in the past. Life must pulsate in a translucent manner and manifest the pattern warded by the solar archetype.<sup>101</sup> Essence and form must unite, and human beings are the link for this to take place.

Pain, which is present in human life because of the karmic trauma to be balanced, will not cloud the eyes of those that surrender to that essence. Neither will darkness succeed, because they will become a shining focal point of light that presages the new times.

The Earth is rapidly transforming, and the activity of the forces of purification will intensify. Those that inwardly have agreed to cooperate so that this evolutionary transformation can unfold find the joy of service and giving of self within themselves. Detachment causes them to become a rich medium for growth, for they have learned that form is ephemeral and essence, incorruptible.

A Great Cosmic Avatar<sup>102</sup> permeates this solar system and is turning towards this suffering planet. An unequalled opportunity is being offered to terrestrial humanity. May the awakened beings know how to recognize this, and through the fervor of surrender catapult seeds of future life into the ethers. Forgetting self, may they penetrate the true mystery of communion.

The mind has power over matter and can facilitate or restrict the openness to higher energies penetrating concrete substance. It can create states of suggestion to which matter submits. The awakening of consciousness in matter and its liberation also depend on a new mental attunement.

102 Avatar. A nucleus of consciousness that fully expresses one of Divinity's aspects. Avatars manifest different potentials, able to be active at planetary, systemic, and galactic levels, as well as at others that are broader still. The term is also used to describe a part of the expression of a Regent Avatar, which is the central nucleus of the human being (the monadic Regent or Eighth Monad), when he or she has achieved the greatest perfection possible as an individual. See UNVEILED SECRETS (Iberah and Anu Tea), by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

The mind and material particles shift into relating in a different way when higher energies flow freely into a human being's consciousness, thus allowing that to occur which natural law says is impossible.

An old story tells of how being restricted to analysis and reason gets in the way of the manifestation of higher laws in matter. According to this story, a monk that was considered a saint and one of his companions were walking along a high and rugged cliff. They were talking on subjects that were placing them in attunement with supra-human energies. On one of the stretches of the road there was a drop-off that needed to be passed with care. As the monk reached the edge, he continued to walk right into the air and his companion followed without realizing. When they were close to the other side, the monk asked his companion if this was the first time that he had walked on air. When the other realized what was happening, he fell. His faith wasn't sufficient to keep him up because of what his mind told him was impossible.

Other Aspects of Group Work

As the planetary transition develops, those who stay in service in incarnation or acting on Earth's psychic levels will be able to transform into skilled workers through their own attunement with supraphysical laws.

In the critical times of this crisis, evolutionary work in the material sphere must be carried out by groups coordinated through two or three individuals that work in perfect harmony. At least one of them will be an accepted disciple<sup>103</sup> or an

<sup>103</sup> Accepted disciple. An individual who, on inner levels, can already draw close to the nucleus of his or her inner group in a special way, thus preparing for the first Initiation. This preparation is based upon the service

Initiate. They will be drawn to meet through inner magnetism, and in certain cases this will happen in an apparently inexplicable way. They were assigned the task on inner planes of life, and they will easily recognize each other when they come face to face on the physical plane.

The rest of the members of these groups will also be drawn to each other inwardly, and there will be no room for doubts or arguments amongst them. The spiritual goal and the service to be given will absorb their bodies in such a way that the vibration generated will repel the obstacles of personal relationship so familiar at this time. In critical moments human experience will be of no use, for at the time of chaos one must count on genuine inner inspiration, which emerges at the opportune time.

These service groups will be present and active all over the surface of the planet. However, given the unreliability of the responses of volunteers, who will be clouded by egotistical living, the groups will not always have all their active members on the external plane. There will be cases where only one individual will take on the task in an outward manner; but this one must recognize that he or she is part of an inner group and proceed without distrust. In order to do so, all the help needed will be given.

There will basically be seven elements that make up the heart of those groups, which may not be perceptible in the external world. There will also be those who will not be part of that central structure, but rather part of the aura of the group, and will work with it during an established period.

Difficulties in relationships, emotional crises, and differences of opinion cannot exist between the incarnated members. The radiation of the love immanent in their souls and the vibratory potency of the service link created on the inner planes, will overcome those manifestations inherent to the terrestrial bodies. The laws of the spiritual world must be strictly followed, and from the union with the Hierarchy will flow the energy that will allow them to fulfill their tasks.

Dealing with this humanity, the Hierarchy is confronted with adverse conditions and with matter—the bodies of the collaborators—that has difficulty responding to subtler impulses. But if there is real aspiration, surrender, and firm decisiveness in those individuals to move forward in spite of any obstacles that may arise, the Hierarchy's help will always be noticeable on any of the material strata.

Keep these words in your heart and do not delay your steps towards the light, not even for an instant.

It is therefore necessary to collaborate in healing the general state of the being, mainly on psychic levels. For this reason and at this time the path of forgetting of self and transcendence is repeatedly recommended, where nothing is gained through encouraging a search for answers or explanations.

That which takes place within an individual on inner levels is hidden, inscrutable to thought, and must remain in the silence—both outer and inner. One must not weave explanations about the inner process with one's imagination. Are there any changes in a situation if an individual is informed about it? Does the grace become greater or lesser if the mind knows about it?

The action of monadic energy upon the individual leads him or her into a self-conscious state of grace, which avoids wasting that precious potential on mental matters. When that energy permeates the consciousness and elevates it, this does not awaken curiosity about what is taking place on the inner levels. The need for information comes from the mind, which often adds its own fantasies to what is occurring. The path of perfection, however, brings one into serenity, peace, and surrender, which have nothing to do with passive negative states, such as, for example, that of accepting the chaos achieved by this civilization.

In order for changes to occur, there must be firmness, but no rigidity. The greater good is what is important. Because the material forces do not easily give up what was under their control until now, there will always be tests. At first those tests seem like obstacles that others or that external life imposes on individuals; however, as these individuals become stronger, they begin to face what they in themselves are. This stage demands from them a greater clarity of goal and the decision to transcend all of that.

The nuances of silence are many. That which addresses psychological mechanisms is a doorway into the life of the soul, and there is special assistance for those who, having observed these mechanisms, seek to ascend to levels of purity. Individuals' true service, their union with the life that flows according to high patterns, and the field of practical activity that they are responsible for, must correspond with what the inner world points them toward. For this reason, before they effectively receive a task from the Evolutionary Plan, the energy of their bodies goes through profound transformations. Successive transmutations take place, allowing a higher vibration to enter into them that is in keeping with their roles.

When the bodies are dense, those transmutations require that the consciousness be withdrawn from them so that they will yield more freely, dissolving the coarser knots. Thus, such processes mostly take place during times of sleep. What matters is the transformation in the consciousness, and this is all that must be watched for. Service groups will work in this way, on all the levels of existence that are in their sphere of activity.

The current level of radioactive contamination on the planet's physical plane has an effect at subtle levels, disintegrating the thread of life that connects the consciousness to the bodies. Material atoms have a subtle counterpart to which they are connected by an etheric web. When—influenced by dark forces—human beings create processes to obtain energy from the nucleus of those atoms; this acts directly upon that which serves as the concrete-physical foundation for anchoring divine power in manifested life. Such processes are a violation of laws that should be learned, controlled, and then used in an altruistic way that benefits the All. The negative karmic consequences generated by this violation are great, and are already making themselves felt. When splitting the nucleus of an atom on the physical plane, human beings break the current that unites the subtle counterparts of that particle. The liberated energy ceases to respond to the laws governing the plane to which it belongs and becomes an agent for disintegrating the forms manifested there. It is as if it “started acting for its own advantage,” outside of cosmic rhythms, and only the intervention of a higher power is capable of bringing such an imbalance to a stop.

For this reason the work of transmutation and preservation of life carried out by the planetary centers and by service groups is immeasurable and constant. If it were not for them, the Earth would no longer exist as a material planet.

Today, thousands of human beings are immersed in the illusion that they call normality. For centuries they repeat ineffective patterns, and try to carry on their daily lives in the same way, in spite of the errors upon which civilization was built. Spiritual alternatives that would have helped avoid today's chaos spreading through the whole planet have been ignored time and time again.

The search to ease this situation is valid when it comes as a result of a maturing process in the consciousness, of adhering to transformative process, and having no hate or animosity. If the roots of the tree are strengthened, it can give good fruits; the same thing occurs with the consciousness that acts to support the Earth's redemption. All of its existence is founded upon secure and spiritual bases because it can depend on infallible laws.

Connections with the Hierarchy

When we speak about the service groups that will act in emergencies during the coming times of worldwide chaos on Earth, we are referring to those directly and consciously connected to the Hierarchy. Evolution is continuous, and the Hierarchy is the vein that guides the evolutionary impulse both for humanity and for the sub-human kingdoms. Thus, for there to be correct group activity, the connection is necessary and basic.

It is essential to be conscious of the fact that the Hierarchy's work is based on cosmic laws. The supraphysical Councils<sup>104</sup> deal with the aspect of consciousness, and for this reason any external action inspired by them has the goal of liberation and expansion of consciousness: be it in a mineral atom, a plant, an animal, a human being, or a planet.

<sup>104</sup> Councils. Unified groupings of consciousnesses of a high degree of evolution that promote the fulfillment of the

Humans could have organized themselves according to basic laws of relationship, which would have given them a healthy and orderly existence on the planet's surface. They received great opportunities and impulses concerning this, although they never took advantage of them. The rules for correct behavior, for the assistance of fellow humans, and for healthy co-living are known generally, although rarely applied. In spite of all this, today the Hierarchy's goal is not that of organizing human life, but rather of guiding beings into knowledge of self and adherence to the Evolutionary Plan—and therefore, transcending already transmitted patterns, even when positive and accepted during former periods.

In the past cycle human beings worked under the inspiration of the spiritual Hierarchy cosmic purpose within a specific scope. They work directly connected to the Central Celestial Government, being its perfect extension and the custodians of its intentions.

without being conscious of it. Even if they perceived the presence of the sublime energies that inspired them, they did not always recognize the source. However, because the energy conjunctures in the current planetary transition are different, the need for direct help on the material planes is great. Therefore, when service groups take action, they will do so fully conscious of being guided by the Hierarchy. It has been planned this way, and the Teachers on inner levels are working so that it will happen.

One of the main obstacles for terrestrial humans' conscious contact with the Hierarchy is the illusion in which they are submerged. The development of inner senses is a delicate field, very contaminated with ancient tendencies that are still present and active in humanity at this time. It is not rare for beings who had incarnations in Atlantis<sup>105</sup> that were significant in their development—and they are not just a few—to bear the stamp of that period. This stamp is bringing in a higher expression at this time.

---

105 Atlantis. Ancient continent and cradle of the Fourth Race—also called the Atlantean Race—where terrestrial humans formed their astral body. See UNVEILED SECRETS (Iberah and Anu Tea), by the same author, Editora Pensamento.

The Hierarchy is no longer polarized on the terrestrial astral or mental levels. Their current work platform, as well as that of the inner groups, is the field of monads, the level of consciousness permeated by spiritual and divine energies. For this reason, in order for humans to establish real contact with the Hierarchy, the formation of a deep-reaching energy vortex is necessary. The vortex is generated by some group and some individual factors:

- An elevated mental polarization

The mind must be kept in a crystalline state at the highest vibratory level possible. The reaffirmation of inner vows must be continuous. Everything that turns the group aside from the spiritual purpose must be promptly warded off.

- A consciously assumed goal

Even though the members of the group are in various evolutionary stages, all must clearly hold the goal to which they are dedicating their efforts. The components of a group during these times that is acting in association with the Hierarchy must already have an improved character and have become impersonal and detached. The precious energy available for the manifestation of the Evolutionary Plan must not be wasted on dissolving friction between obstinate personalities. Imperfection inhabits human beings' bodies, but higher help will not be lacking if purity of intention and persistence are present.

- Surrender

Without surrender, the vortex generated by group activity will not manage to move beyond the concrete mental level, and will even be beset by negative entities inhabiting this plane.

The surrender must be pure. The members must not compare themselves with each other, but rather only desire to be united with that which is Supreme and to carry out Its purpose. Any other aspiration at that level of work is considered a scattering and deviation.

These instructions are not meant, however, for those who still need to be realized in a human way and who will have the opportunity, as the cycles permit, to do this. The instructions are for those who, having taken on the path of material liberation, dedicate their lives wholly to service to the light. There is no other desire in them, even if they are involved in karmic commitments.

- Purity of intention

Whenever an evolutionary step is to be taken, individually or in group form, attacks on the part of dissuasive forces take place. This is the reality on Earth's surface, and this must be clearly seen so that opportunities are not lost. We are at the end of a cycle, and each second is precious for imprinting the sign of redemption in the planet's ethers with fire and light.

Purity is required on all levels of the being. Individuals must be conscious that, in order to complete the Evolutionary Plan task, they are offered access to supernatural laws. Some already have that access, which will be more broadly available as the planetary transition reaches its outcome.

- Outer activity as a reflection of the inner world

Precision, order, and firmness in decision taking, added to the previous requirements, must be the pillars of group work.

The outer activity of the group must reflect the synchronicity of the inner planes of life with a minimum expending of energy. This will be possible because the Hierarchies will be working closely with the members of the group at a level never experienced before on Earth.

Any shadow that should arise in the consciousness must be promptly dissolved by the powerful light of the group goal. The correct use of time, and control of the spoken word are basic components for service, in conformity with evolutionary purposes. Inner instruction must not be wasted: it only touches those who can follow it.

The Cosmic Councils accompany each of humanity's actions. They register everything through their omniscience. They are the nuclei that decode the will of the Creator Logos<sup>106</sup> for Earth. This will is picked up by Miz Tli Tlan and radiated to the center of the living beings that inhabit the planet.

The atomic nucleus is the receptacle of that supreme energy. It holds the secret of the manifestation of the form. That energy, together with the other two logocic Aspects (transcendent magnetism and creative movement), makes life on the material planes possible.

One of the secrets revealed at Initiations is control over the creation of forms. As is known, a being of high evolution can craft a body and through it contact other beings, or create any necessary object from nothing. It is capable of this because the individual will has united with logocic will. However, the actions of common human beings are different. They frequently violate the laws of the universe they inhabit, contributing to the daily worsening state of chaos.

But today human beings are preparing for profound expansions of consciousness, the possibility of which has never been closer.

There are profound alterations taking place in the constitution of planetary life itself, from its non-material levels to the concrete physical. There are purifications, transmutations, fusions, syntheses, and expansions intensely present in this universe, shaping it according to the vibratory patterns that will give birth to the future Earth. In this period of transition, the Hierarchy's structure is basically made up of the Mirrors of the planetary centers. The consciousnesses that in the past cycle were its body are moving up to broader levels of service and cosmic union.<sup>107</sup>

etary centers can be synthesized in certain words and phrases—keys that facilitate the creation of a special environment in the student’s aura, assisting him or her in coming into closer contact with the energy inherent to those centers. These keys address the relationship between the individual’s or the group’s ascension process with the expression of those nuclei at a terrestrial level, even becoming an inner linking element, the content of which expands as that relationship is activated and becomes conscious.

When opening to contact the energy of the planetary centers and the Hierarchy, a student had a significant symbolic vision where he was standing before a great window covered by a white curtain. In his consciousness he was so close to that window that he could only see the left half of it.<sup>109</sup> Behind the curtain there was an intense light, as if a blazing sun was shining directly upon it. The scene emanated profound peace and a silence that filled everything.

At the same time that he was registering these impressions, he knew that cosmic energy was present and active behind the veil of his consciousness, symbolized in that powerful light shining behind the curtain. There was no distinction between himself and what was manifesting in that vision. In an inexplicable way, that light and his being were like a single energy in different states.

The Path of Inner Instruction

The central vein of the planetary Hierarchy is qualified by solar essence. That vein, which also governs all inner groups, has received different names over the ages, amongst which are: Teacher of the World, Lord Maitreya, Teacher of Angels and of Men, Christ. However, its sublime existence transcends any name or formality. It embraces all things and does not belong to formal religion, nor nations, beliefs, or dogmas. Its transformative power, latent in the heart of each particle of this systemic universe, emerges silently during these times wherever there is an opening.

That energy is healing the Earth, and it must find a transparent channel through the individuals serving the Evolutionary Plan in order to take action. Humans are an important link to achievement in many sectors of the Plan, and as participants in an infinite stream of beings and consciousnesses, it is their responsibility to take on a role and a function that, if neglected, causes imbalances in all of this delicate energy system.

The influence of those who choose to walk the path toward the light is significant, for their steps strongly reverberate throughout the cosmos. This is why faith and surrender are necessary, for they are keys that allow the being to act correctly and move forward, even though the night is dark. Self-sacrificing action, practiced with faith and surrender, is full of the wisdom of spirit. The being understands all things without any explanations through that wisdom; without seeing anything, he or she perceives everything. This mysterious power, which elevates consciousness beyond human knowledge and introduces it into the kingdom of spirit, is guided by the solar essence that is currently making itself felt in a particular way in the planetary environs.

In faith, miracles occur, supraphysical laws are contacted, and the presence of Elder Brothers is recognized. And even when having no human companionship, the one who surrenders to the Evolutionary Plan will never be alone, for the fire burning in the heart is the same that sustains life in this solar universe.

* * *

It is necessary to look at the fact that the Earth's initiatory process<sup>110</sup> is currently going through deep transformations, and that greater opportunities are being offered to each being. All who follow the evolutionary purpose walk the path of Initiations, even though unconsciously so in the beginning. When on that path, they contact their inner group and through it they discover the keys that will allow them to recognize and fulfill their task. Fidelity appears in their bodies and deepens to such a point that they will no longer deviate from the proposed goal. The distractions the dissuasive forces place before them no longer evoke a response, or if there is a response, it no longer is dominant.

As we know, prayer is basic to this deepening. However, it is only genuine prayer that does this. It responds to life's pulse, is an opening to that which is High, sets aside all superfluous things, and renounces all human desire. Like a flame trying to touch the Infinite, the being prays and yields to Supreme Consciousness.

It is possible to cultivate this perennial attitude, and to maintain it even when involved in an external activity. In reality, this would be the true way of proceeding. It is in this way that one achieves a positive tension, from which come attunement with inner impulses, and the possibility of functioning in concert with them. It is in this way that group action—governed by such impulses—is a true planetary service.

Those that adhere to the Evolutionary Plan must keep in mind that their formation basically takes place in the inner worlds, and that therefore it will be in the silence and in surrender that they will receive instruction. When a being consciously penetrates the path of surrender, it is because his or her more powerful inner nuclei are managing to attract the external self. So as this process continues, that which was a field of merely human experience and activities gradually becomes the field of service where what was gathered from the inner worlds is put into practice.

The instruction being given is expanding during this period, when groups of monads are being specially stimulated by powerful cosmic energies. However, given the very precarious psychic conditions of the planet, that which takes place on an individual's subjective levels is not always reflected in the physical brain. In spite of this, inner contact is the only safe way of accessing genuine knowledge.<sup>111</sup>

Those who are sincerely willing to serve, to give of themselves, must remember that their life no longer belongs to them. Cultivating this attitude, they stop worrying about themselves and their own problems, for this would result in an interruption of the flow of higher energy. They offer themselves and their imperfections to the Supreme Source, and they know that all that they need will come to them and that their deficiencies will be taken care of. This certainty is not only based on conviction, which is a mental quality, but also on pure faith, which comes as a result of the individual's union with their own self.

Even when involved in intense external activity, they must always remember to stay in attunement with that essence, just like a delicate membrane stretched to a correct tension and ready to respond to the lightest touch. It is principally from the inner worlds that guidance will come for the direction to take, especially in the critical times ahead. What better source of knowledge of the unprecedented is there than the source that generated it?

It is necessary, however, to emphasize that we are referring here to authentic inner guidance, and not of the contact of the being with terrestrial astral or mental planes, which are where the forces of chaos are active and where many disincarnates live the illusion of being teachers. True instruction can reach the conscious self and imprint on the physical brain in the following ways:

- Impulses coming from the high self

With the awakening of the right side consciousness and the implanting of the new genetic code, contact between the causal nucleus (high self or soul) and the outer part of the self is becoming more fluid, without the formalities required in the past. The life of the soul already permeates concrete levels and is integrating into the daily life of those who have turned toward it. In this way, that which before was acquired in special meditations can now be perceived in a natural manner, without exercises or postures, even when carrying out external activities.

Such a possibility for drawing closer is part of a greater process, which is the divinization of planetary life and the dynamizing of the monadic field.<sup>112</sup> This is necessary so that pure service can be manifested and the awakened soul can polarize at the intuitive level. Meanwhile, to mount up to a new level, it is necessary to fulfill the stages of the previous denser levels. In this way, there will be cases in which some exercise, carried out for a specific period, will be of assistance in refining the attunement of the conscious self with his or her inner nuclei. When that need becomes evident and is recognized as real, it must be faithfully and accurately accomplished.

- Impulses coming from the monad

At this time many individuals are forming their body of light.<sup>113</sup> By means of this, monadic energy can more powerfully and translucently project itself both onto the causal level (plane of the soul) and onto the material levels (plane of the personality). Monadic energy is basic for the redemption of matter, for it brings the impulse of divine power, which breaks the barriers to the liberation of light. Those who are being touched by that energy have their life so dynamically transformed that it is only through the intervention of grace that they can bear it. Moreover, the presence itself of monadic energy in terrestrial humans comes about through cosmic grace.

113 See footnote on "body of light" on page 114.

- Impulses coming from the inner group

These are acquired by the soul, and in differing degrees transmitted to the being's outer life. The greater the individual's surrender and giving of self, the more ready he or she will be for receiving these impulses. As evolution occurs, the soul becomes ever more conscious of its group, learns to recognize its energy and to attune with it, until it penetrates the central fire of the group and transforms into an expression of it. This process is part of the path of Initiations.

- Impulses coming from the inner Teacher

While the energies of the inner group are basically radiated to support tasks for the Evolutionary Plan, the formation of the being is guided by consciousnesses that have already transcended the level where that being is polarized. Those consciousnesses are called inner Teachers. Those who represent them on the physical plane amongst incarnated humans are not ostentatious about their role, and almost always are only recognized by their own disciples. Through this information we are giving students an important key to the present phase.

- Impulses coming from a Hierarchy

In the current planetary transition many beings are taken up into the Hierarchy's aura in a special way, receiving a stimulation there that not only allows them to be liberated from the material planes, but also to become useful and adequate instruments for the manifestation of the Evolutionary Plan. That coming together accelerates the other types of contact described above. In certain cases those Hierarchies temporarily take on the role of Teachers.

- Impulses coming from the Mirrors of the planetary centers and from other spiritual and divine sources

The being is receiving these impulses on different planes. The capacity to accept them, to absorb them, and re-transmit them to planetary life or to the active evolutionary task is related to how awake he or she is on the level where contact is established.

Even if at first glance these processes may seem individual, in reality they guide groups of monads into higher evolution. Any advancement the group may make permeates the infra-monadic levels of consciousness in a successive manner until outer spheres are reached and there is an emergence into the manifested world.

The Path of Initiations

The need for recognizing certain occult laws begins to emerge in beings when they draw closer to the portal of Initiations, which happens in group form<sup>114</sup>, with a foundation in service that is in attunement with evolutionary purpose.

This need is greatly emphasized during this period because the Seventh Ray<sup>115</sup> has begun 114 When a group of monads goes through an Initiation, which is always an inner event, each one of the members takes the step that corresponds to them in the evolutionary path. However, because it is about a group initiatory process, it becomes possible for each to receive an outpouring of greater energy potential.

115 Seventh Ray. The Seventh Ray, or energy of organization and order, has a basic role in the current planetary transition, for it holds the keys to synthesis between spirit and matter. The Hierarchy called Antuak, which to be more broadly active at a planetary level. Because during the last phases of the previous cycle this level was governed by the Sixth Ray, the Seventh only made itself felt at the point of the Third Initiation. The pathway to the First and Second Initiations was mainly done through devotional and mystical aspects expressed through outer consciousness.

With today's influence of the Seventh Ray, taking up the occult side of life has become available for humanity in general, and is no longer restricted to closed groups and esoteric activities. Also, many of the distortions imposed upon this hidden side by human beings have been removed. The first veils that covered its face have been taken away and it shows itself to be the path of union with the cosmos. Through it, real scientific knowledge of life, which reveals the laws that govern manifestation on the various planes of existence, merges with the path of service and surrender. By means of it, life and form show themselves to be complementary, and inner wisdom becomes the thread that links all aspects of existence.

In this way, those who are offering self to serve the world at this time can more easily transcend mere human activity, and can more amply interact with beings and with life based on energies, on vibratory patterns, and on the recognition of cosmic laws. This does not cause them to be cold and rational, which is a failing of the mind not yet illumined by the soul. Rather, it converts them into a more full expression of the solar essence, which is the pure sense of union.

The work done upon the being's external bodies (the physical-etheric, the emotional, and the mental) by the energies of the soul basically takes place at atomic and cellular levels. The pulsation, the direction of rotation, and the magnetic vectors of each atom are gradually re-adjusted so that it may channel—and bear—more powerful vibrations and impulses emanated by the soul, the monad, or the Hierarchies. However, not all atoms can handle those adjustments, maybe because of their unstable energy state, or maybe because of their karma.<sup>116</sup> Those that are in such a condition must be eliminated from the body and returned to the general reservoir<sup>117</sup> of the planet's atoms.

Atoms are vortices of energies and forces; nuclei that emit and receive vibrations. This is how the soul perceives them. The adjustment they go through is gradual, demands successive purifications, and is part of the path of Initiations. Aspirants and disciples must consciously participate in this, which takes place through surrender, forgetting self, faith, and a sincere acquiescence to the Evolutionary Plan.

A virtue is a specific vibratory state. When it is cultivated by an individual and expressed through the bodies, it gradually influences the vibration of the body's atoms. That vibration is elevated little by little to the highest level possible for that state and that phase of the life of the being. Then after the necessary purifications

116 Not only human beings, but also the materials of their bodies have individual karma. All particles of the material universe respond to karmic law. See footnote on "material karma" on page 43.

117 See footnote on "permanent atoms" on page 134.

and corresponding crises, it is stabilized so that a new ascendant movement can be taken on.

In this way, the energies of the soul take ever-greater control of the bodies. This process happens through the permanent atom,<sup>118</sup> a central vortex that synthesizes all of the body's atomic life. As is known, there is a permanent atom for each of the being's external bodies, and the soul is linked to them until it completely absorbs them. When that absorption takes place, they do not cease to exist. Rather, they become an expression of that soul rather than of the material forces of which they are made.

As the atoms are vibrationally and magnetically adjusted, they gradually become capable of receiving and transmitting more elevated fires, and are no longer restricted to frictional fire, which is intrinsic to their material nature. These facts are fundamentally important to individuals serving the Evolutionary Plan, mainly in the work of radiation, which, in spite of being an inner activity, is also reflected in the concrete strata of planetary life.

118 As humans know, when a material body is taken apart, its atoms are re-used in other bodies and molecules, becoming part of new groupings. The pool of atoms that exists on the planet and the unified consciousness that is the governor, are together given the name of general reservoir of atoms.

The cells go through an analogous process. However, since each of them is a living organism and a cohesive and unified whole, they respond to the attraction of light consciousness in a way more perceptible to humans. Cells hold light within themselves, and at a certain point in their evolution they experience a need for allowing it to expand.

When awake, the human being aspires in different ways to unite with divinity. The cell that has woken up also aspires to that union. The achievement of this state comes as a result of the cell's atoms experiencing the draw of the energy of the soul, which takes place through the permanent atom. In this way, each cell begins to transform into an energy vortex that ardently turns to that which is Higher, and through this the entire planetary aura is gradually made more subtle.

One human being corresponds to one cell in the body of humanity—or to an atom in the great solar body. One can thus see how Life is present in each particle, with its perfection transcending the narrow commercial vision of current science.

Even though the scientists of this surface civilization crossed the thresholds of the world of energy when they penetrated the mysteries of the atom, they have not really come to know the laws of that world, nor can they control them. They perceived the existence of the energy, although with a myopic, materialist, and utilitarian vision. They did not understand that Consciousness is present in all things, and that the cosmos manifests in It and through It. For that understanding to occur, it is necessary that Consciousness first be contacted in the heart of one's being, that it should expand, and that It—rather than the human mind—should point out the steps to be taken. This is the path of Initiations—where the being sets aside all that is known; where he or she unites with that which is unprecedented, the expression of supracorporeal life; where pure action dedicated to the Creator is enabled. That path is walked by beings that have given themselves to the light and will sometime be transformed by that path into full manifestations of the Supreme Idea.

A new energy is gradually permeating the activity of individuals as they move forward on this path. Their actions are no longer restricted to the immediate environment and instead begin to exert a positive influence at a distance. Their aura, formed by the vibratory emanation of their atoms on the different planes, is gradually potentized. They become creative, and in each of their actions that which is sacred spreads outward. This is the true meaning of sacrifice, by means of which spirit can permeate the concrete world; it is the path for the healing and redemption of matter; it is the priestly path, by means of which the laws governing evolution can express.

Keeping these facts in mind and striving to live them in the purity of surrender, individuals become crystalline channels for the sublime energies of their own being and for the actions of the Hierarchy, especially during the critical times of emergency and chaos that are drawing closer.

There have already been significant incidences of supra-conscious realities coming through groups, and in a certain way this is being repeated in the current period. The Christ consciousness, which has several times expressed on Earth until this planetary cycle, announced the coming of what he called the Holy Spirit<sup>119</sup> to the disciples, through his manifestation as Jesus. However, he said that the bodies he had available to him had not been glorified enough to transmit such a sacred energy to them. After going through the resurrection—which is an inner and occult realization rather than a physical fact—, he resurged before the disciples and breathed on them, extorting them to receive the Holy Spirit. During forty days the Christ appeared to the disciples, until the ascension, when he revealed that they could not yet have certain supreme understandings, but that shortly they would be baptized by fire. Fifty days after the resurrection, after a loud noise and a tempestuous wind, tongues of fire materialized before the disciples and came to rest over top of each one, filling them with a renewing energy: the Holy Spirit had 119 Holy Spirit. The Third Aspect of divinity. It is esoterically called Active Intelligence. It was developed in the previous manifestation of this solar system, which is now to be realized in the energy of the Second Aspect, the Son, or love-wisdom. In its next manifestation the solar system will develop the First divine Aspect, being realized through the energy of cosmic willpower.

confirmed them. A greater design was instilled in those who had completely surrendered to its guidance in order to serve God.

The process of manifestation of an energy that is totally free of ties to dense forces is gradual. It includes a careful work of transformation of matter, of adapting the conscious self to new and higher vibrations, and the establishment of an alignment and stable communication between the being's various nuclei. The coarser emanations have to be absorbed, selected, and transformed by the more inner nuclei. A Hierarchy always acts together with those nuclei as a magnetic pole, maintaining the tension necessary for healing to take place. This is the source that nurtures and supports this whole process.

In the example given above, the christic energy's work done over the forty days after the resurrection was not limited to the disciples—in spite of the fact that in a certain sense it was especially directed toward them, causing them to take up certain evolutionary tasks. During that period of time, the destinies of certain planetary sectors were confirmed, as well as the unalterable possibility of matter being able to reflect transcendent realities. There were important keys being transmitted in those events, with the number 4 being related to material cycles and the number 10 to perfection.<sup>120</sup> In those forty days the inner preparation for the consecration of the substance matrix of the planet was completed. This is what is actually underway and is to be fulfilled after there is a purification of forces, vibrations, and energies that no longer fit the stage the Earth is entering. It is for this reason that within a significant number of individuals profound transformations are occurring, in keeping with those planetary developments. More than ever the Hierarchy is near everyday humanity.

As for the apostles, they experienced different events; these were mainly related to the consciousnesses that were teaching them. As they had egos available to mediate contacts with the external world, it was necessary to not only elevate the light of their bodies' material particles, but to also dissolve remaining limitations within them that obstructed the penetration of pure energy. When they were touched by the Holy

Spirit, a work that had been in progress for a long time was consummated. This intensified when the apostles accepted into themselves the breath of a non-material life that disperses illusions. And when the foreseen cycle was ended, the power of the Heavens made itself felt, announcing that the portals of liberation were opening for some of the children of Earth.

The grace that guides the consciousness into realization is insuperable. Everything that exists in the being is reborn; at cosmic levels that individual's light emits an unprecedented glow and joins with many others that are already on their way to perfection. Cosmic existence awaits that moment in each one of us; but not passively. Its messengers speak within those that daily perceive themselves to be penetrating another sphere of existence and that know there are wiser pathways than the ones restricted to material life.<sup>121</sup>

Nothing can stop the course of evolution. That this planet will be consecrated, that humans will be new beings, and that all will discover themselves to be part of a single Life, has been written in the Heavens. In this way the purpose of that Life will be the purpose of all of humanity, and a single voice will cry out, not in supplication nor as an aspiration for a coming together, but rather as revelation and glory: that which is sacred manifesting in matter, and redeemed matter manifesting supreme beauty. The Verb<sup>122</sup> will then be present in the words of liberated humans. The sidereal frontiers will dissolve, and those that were formerly assisted will guide those who walk the paths behind them. The journey toward that meeting includes outer and inner universes, unattained spheres of consciousness, and contact with that which is sublime held in the heart of matter. And when the sacred fire fully runs through the being, dissolving currently held limitations, a single radiant light will be recognized as a single truth and essence.

Initiations, Fires, Rays, and Centers

Even when beings in service to the Evolutionary Plan are connected to a specific intraterrestrial center as a basic energy and a task to be completed, they traverse the rest of the centers, where they are trained and imbued with specific energies channeled by the Mirrors. In their formation they have to learn to deal with different Rays, as well as with the various fires of the universe. This learning is gradually expanded as synthesis occurs within them, successively blending the nuclei of their consciousness.

There are diverse inter-relationships that exist between the Initiations and the fires' activity, the Rays, the being's nuclei, and the intraterrestrial centers:

Accepted disciple and First Degree Initiate

At this stage the being is preparing for the First or for the Second Initiation.

- Basic fire: by friction. Solar fire gradually emerges in the being's external life.
- Predominant Ray: that of the integrated personality, which is gradually permeated by the soul.
- Basic connection: Erks, Anu Tea, and in certain cases, Lis.

Second Degree Initiate

At this stage the being is preparing for the Third Initiation.

- Basic fires: by friction and solar. Cosmic fire is disclosed.
- Predominant Ray: that of the soul already predominates in various areas of the life of the being, but does not yet have complete ascendancy over the ego.

- Basic connection: Erks, Mirna Jad, and in certain cases, Lis.

Third Degree Initiate

At this stage the being is preparing for the Fourth Initiation.

- Basic fire: solar. Cosmic fire begins to make itself felt.
- Predominant Rays: that of the soul, which now has complete control over the external manifestation of the being, and that of the monad, which begins to emerge, foretelling future phases.
- Basic connection: Erks, Miz Tli Tlan, Aurora, and Iberah.

Fourth Degree Initiate

At this stage the being is preparing for the Fifth Initiation.

- Basic fire: solar. Cosmic fire begins to be active to a greater degree.
- Predominant Ray: that of the monad, by means of the body of light.

- Basic connection: Miz Tli Tlan, Mirna Jad, and Iberah.

Fifth Degree Initiate

At this stage the being is preparing for the Sixth Initiation.

- Basic fire: cosmic.
- Predominant Ray: that of the monad.
- Basic connection: Miz Tli Tlan, and Iberah.

At the stages corresponding to those of the Sixth and Seventh Degree Initiate, synthesis is the basic note expressed by the being, who can manifest the energy and fires most appropriate for the portion of the Evolutionary Plan that is his or hers to dynamize.

These correlations address what is taking place in the current Earth transition. It is important to emphasize that the connection of the various planetary centers with each phase refers to the formation of an energy conjuncture specific to the consummation of the successive Initiations. However, according to the task in development or the inner group to which the being belongs, there are other interconnections associated with and complementing this particular conjuncture.

In addition, the various forms of fire are never absent, even though one of them may predominate, depending on the levels of consciousness where the being is polarized and of his or her degree of evolution.

Knowledge of the existence of the initiatory process,<sup>123</sup> as well as that of certain nuances of each of its phases, can be of great help to individuals who seeks to serve and give of themselves to the Evolutionary Plan. The fact that they are developing that search within themselves is a sign that the energies of the soul are permeating them, causing them to turn to subtler vibrational patterns. That knowledge may be of assistance to them, especially during times of testing, when they will have to affirm their adherence to evolutionary law. Through those tests they will gradually acquire control over the expression of their bodies on the various planes of consciousness.

As we have seen, occult knowledge of various specific events is conveyed by the powerful energy of the Seventh Ray, which is now permeating the whole planet. That energy also makes humanity's connection with Andromeda and Saturn accessible, in this phase held by Anu Tea.

It is through the revelation of the energy of order and ceremony of the Seventh Ray that one can look at events in life, beings, and one's own bodies and see them and perceive them as energy in movement and as expressions of consciousness. The Seventh Ray allows the building of forms according to the vibratory pattern emanated by the essence; it holds the keys for materialization and dematerialization, processes that will be used in the various rescue operations, but also to support individuals and groups incarnated during the coming times of severe chaos.

The formation of groups through energy affinity is stimulated and guided through the activity of the Seventh Ray's aspects—channeled into planetary orbit and humanity by means of Anu Tea—in consonance with evolutionary purpose. That formation is a reality on supraphysical planes; however, on the concrete external plane, those who respond to that transmitted stimulus are rare. In general, they allow themselves to be corrupted by what is lacking in the personalities of their members and by the power plays generated by the human ego.

Today the call of Anu Tea resonates throughout the ethers of the planet and exhorts beings to refine their attunement and to effectively take their positions in the groups of which they are a part. They are called together to not only hold an intention, but to be effective in imprinting the electric vibrations of solar energy in the planet's ethers.

You will come to know the real meaning of service when you decide to die to what is past. The energies of Anu Tea strengthen your will and your resolve to move forward; they illumine your steps and must radiate through your hands.

Beautiful is the path of surrender and sacrifice, where each action becomes a glorifying instrument of Supreme Law. However, the decision to continue must be steadfast, and the faith that warms the being must be pure. Darkness will not prevail in those who unite with the Hierarchy, and even though it may envelope them, it will no longer be able to have dominance over them.

Anu Tea opens its portals to receive you and your siblings. Recognize the value of the Flame given to you to carry, and manifest its power and radiance in your living.

were split. In 1941, North American scientists, while working on building a dangerous weapon, had already been warned that extraterrestrial laws would not permit its manufacture.

The president Franklin Delano Roosevelt, main supporter of the Manhattan Project to build the atomic bomb, was receiving warnings in unusual ways that the tests taking place at Shagg Field should not continue because they threatened all planetary life. During that period, in spite of the fact that two scientists connected with the project disappeared without a trace, the latter continued its course.

Roosevelt himself ordered it this way, and thus the first atomic bomb of modern history was announced. On the occasion, a journalist from Washington—in a separate piece—reported a curious fact, which was that a ball of light of unknown origin had circled the presidential residence building, alarming the guards and then disappearing. Thirty days later, on the 12th of April, 1945, Roosevelt died.

As is publicly known, later on the devastating bomb destroyed Hiroshima, causing more than one hundred thousand disincarnating. This number climbed to two hundred and fifty thousand in the following days, without taking into account those that occurred later in Nagasaki.

Harry Truman continued Roosevelt's administration, and on a day in August of 1946, he received a formal visit from the Swedish ambassador to the United States. The ambassador brought messages sent by King Gustav V, and at 8 o'clock on the 23rd of August, 1946, he entered Truman's office. These messages included information about the fact that in Sweden in 1942 there had been a surprising meeting in the government palace, where three strange beings who seemed to have emerged out of nowhere and who spoke in monotones and without expression, argued strongly in support of having harmony finally prevail between human beings on Earth. Being a little taller than 1.20 m, they appeared projected on the walls of the audience room of the government palace, as if on a video screen.

These mysterious emissaries spoke for about ten minutes in perfect English, and gave astounding testimony on the capacity of vessels to send representatives by means of projections, thus making it unnecessary for them to come to the physical plane.

Sweden had been chosen for divulging the true planetary situation of that time to the world. The ambassador presented Truman with the admonishments of beings that for a long time had been contacting terrestrial governments, contained in a document that has been partly reproduced in the following pages. Truman read the document, and when he looked up again the ambassador was no longer there. As happened to Brodie in the plane, he had disappeared. On the empty chair was the white envelope that had contained the message. It had the Swedish Royal House seal on it, somewhat like a challenge.

The warning was there. We do not know what was done afterwards, or what was not done. It is certain that the message did not make the current combative civilization, except Sweden, more sensitive.

Human beings have been abandoned to their luck because they have pridefully placed themselves in opposition to the divine laws that are applied to procreation. The Earth's surface race is always going against the divine, such as occurred in the Tower of Babel in the Bible, or in Sodom and Gomorra, or during the days of Atlantis. Using free will, humans have never had true knowledge; always doing what they want, they have distanced themselves from the laws of nature and the laws of the universe, taking the path to today's crumbling civilization. However, once this period is over and the terrestrial environment purified, the emergence of a new human race on the surface of the planet will be possible.

A Message from a Previous Civilization<sup>126</sup>

“To your world:

“It would be good to underscore the fact that there are three types of worlds, and even though integration of their civilizations has always been desired, their inhabitants have never truly related to one another. These worlds are: the extraterrestrial world of the cosmos, the intraterrestrial world of the hollow Earth, and the world of the surface of the Earth. This latter is moving rapidly toward the destruction that our ancestors also could not avoid, and that once turned planet Earth into a gigantic tomb full of hideous corpses, ruins, and desolation.

“All this happened at a very remote time, way beyond your conjecture.<sup>127</sup> At that time humans witnessed the events that were taking place but could do nothing. Each civilization reaches a maximum point of development and then immediately or gradually disappears. It is consumed as stars are. Universal life is an eternal mathematical game, composed of cycles that contain certain annihilating aspects.

“Our technological development reached impressive levels of perfection. Even at astonishing distances we were able to break down matter into units of energy and also reconstruct it. The effects of the radioactive residue were kept under control.

<sup>127</sup> This refers to the Earth’s preceding cycle of existence, which is to say, in a previous phase of the planet’s manifestation, where it was less dense and had a subtle physical state.

“This practice brought about the use of disintegrator plants (or stations) in which machines could transform the physical form of a person into energy and project that energy to any city on Earth, where another machine would reconfigure it. It later became commonplace for individuals to have their own machines.

“There were practically no secrets for us.

“Thanks to our scientific knowledge we could do almost anything we wanted to, including to extend life indefinitely. This was made possible by using the process of hibernation, which our social system allowed. Hibernation consisted of having our vital functions suspended for years and later simply taking a pill to return to active life.

“The governing class had managed to correct the problem of the conglomeration of living creatures. It was able to control the excessive growth that had occurred in the population with its resulting contamination. Of course, lengthy periods of time were needed for everything to be adjusted, because our peaceful nature did not allow us to adopt any aggressive measures against those who transgressed the norm.

“In the assistance centers the newly born received programming pills that produced the effect of curbing any violent action against a fellow being.

“Nevertheless, serious problems began to arise due to the lack of growth in consciousness regarding continual technological progress. On a memorable date the governing council finally thought of a solution for these problems. In order to avoid death, from then on we had to have governors with total decision-making power. They then programmed a new race that cooperated with the Plan of Evolution. Prepared to look beyond both the bad and the good, they legislated with extraordinary wisdom. The population growth was limited and, under this regime, conception was controlled and prevented. Furthermore, the decrepit, the senile, and those considered to be socially unrecoverable were eliminated.

“But we had been making a mistake. An aberration in the structure upon which we had consolidated the society of the terrestrial surface went unnoticed: the motors of our powerful technology were being fueled exclusively with atomic energy. We knew about other forms to produce clean energy but we were satisfied with the degree of security obtained from controlling the splitting of the atom. Obviously, in the beginning we had to deal with the radioactive residue, which we placed in special capsules and then buried. Later we were able to transform that residue, and finally, we reached what we called the point of a ‘no loss consumer chain.’ It could be compared to an engine of today, powered by gasoline, that could continually collect and reutilize all of the gases generated by its combustion. We had reached the point where we thought we had achieved everything. Then one of our mathematicians warned us that after a certain time (which you would measure in terms of hundreds of years) the spectromagnetic lines of the recycled energy were unexpectedly no longer responding to the rigid laws they had followed until then.

“In other words, they rebelled. For what else could this anarchy of the spectromagnetic lines of atomic recycling mean? When we found this out, it was too late. Our science had completed its cycle and all of us remembered the wise words of the last philosopher: ‘However, death still exists.’

“The radioactive content of the atmosphere began to increase tremendously, producing holes in the ozone layers that surrounded the Earth. The super-complex machinery that supported the structure of our civilization rapidly became useless. You must realize that we had constructed real cybernetic monsters, capable of restoring, on their own, parts of the machinery that had become damaged for whatever reason. Some, therefore, lasted for a longer time, and we managed to obtain a regulator for the rate of increase of radioactivity. But this was of little help. We had not bothered to acquire immunity to the radioactivity, to which we also owed everything that we were, just as today you would not go in search of immunity to the water of your rivers, thinking that tomorrow they could be converted into a factor of death.

“We suddenly knew that we were alone and defenseless.

“We had not progressed as a race; on the contrary, we remained at an elementary level. Without being aware of it, we had simply contributed to the emergence, the splendor, and the twilight of a super-technology. We had been controlled by a technetronic age.

“We had to flee from the cities. Fortunately we knew which direction to take, and we attempted to carry out the exodus strictly within the directives set by the governors. These same governors had once been obliged to adopt extreme measures to avoid a demographic explosion and had ordered the new cities to be built in four perfect rings around the surface of the planet, going through the area that today is called Ecuador. One of the things that I must warn you about is that the topography of the planet was different then. At that time the continental platform was a wide strip that covered the space between the tropics, to the south and to the north. In the area where today the poles are located there were upwelling marine currents; which is to say, natural lines of communication placed in the form of a geometric network under the seas. Through them waters came up from the interior of the planet to the surface and then returned.

“At the present time that network is completely fragmented. The waters now come out of the intraterrestrial world and return to it through only four openings. These, according to your cartography, are located in the triangles of Tokyo-Shanghai-Vladivostok, in the Sea of Japan; of Sydney-Melbourne-New Zealand, in the Tasmanian Sea; of Malvinas (Falklands)-Rio Gallegos-Viedma, in the Argentine Sea; and of Bermuda-San Juan, Puerto Rico-Bahamas, in the North Atlantic Ocean.

“The evacuation of our population was carried out in stages. First those who lived in the inner rings transferred to the outer ones so as not to wait until the last minute and then be obliged to cross a deadly belt composed of the areas where the laws had been most changed. At the same time, desperate efforts were still being made to find a solution. Yet we did not know what to do, as we had to base ourselves exclusively on our own knowledge, without the support of the artificial intelligences. These intelligences went so far as to console us when our psychic system suffered from the impact of the ups and downs of the situation.

“We had become accustomed to using recyclable matter as a source of energy and we finally came face to face with a reality we had not anticipated. We did not have the means to use the more primitive forms of energy controlled by the natural laws of matter. We had inadvertently held back development of consciousness at a technological level and had allowed matter to overrule it.

“What would be the use of trying to return to those sources if we no longer had the devices that could run on those types of fuel?

“You would understand us if you could imagine yourself being told today to go back to using steam ships. You could produce steam—but where are the ships?

“This is when the crisis broke out. That perfect, super-developed society was nothing more than a parasite on a gigantic technological animal. The only parasite on the only animal. If the animal died, what would be left?

“Decadence set in rapidly. The capacity to give orders had long depended on complete records of information that foresaw the need and the consequences of the order being given. It had become so difficult for us to think for ourselves!

“Many chose to remain in the cities, defying the rising level of radiation. They soon became distortions of what they used to be. They suffered bone deformations, went blind because of eye cataracts, and finally died through lack of motor coordination.

“Those who fled wandered through the jungles which we had never bothered about. They faced unfamiliar animals that were unknown to us because the populated belts were protected by strips of total barrenness. They drank water from the streams and many died because they had lost the genetic coding that allowed them to assimilate water in its pure state.

“Others collapsed when they ate. They had lost almost all their capacity to adapt to the terrestrial environment. Some gathered together in coordinated cells, attempting to survive what awaited them.

“Some pills gave them the neutron balance that the body needed, and only by taking these pills could they be assured that food and water would not turn into their enemies.

“The journey was very strenuous. Super-specialization had caused us to become disabled. However, we continued to stay alive, in spite of the warning of the last philosopher: ‘Death still exists.’

“One of our alternatives for survival was to reach the upwelling marine currents, moved by ono-zone,<sup>128</sup> and get to the inner part of the hollow Earth, where we hoped we would not be ravaged by radioactive contamination. Yet, how could we get there?

“How will somebody who lives in Philadelphia and always uses the telephone to communicate with somebody in New York feel when one day he or she discovers that no telephones work?

“We wandered through the jungles... Old age caught up with us. We discovered that our existence as senile parasites was miserable. Meanwhile, radiation had reached intolerable levels and survivors hurried toward the seaboard, searching for the coastline of the ocean. Enormous cataclysms fragmented the external layer of the Earth into millions of pieces, as if a massive explosion had overtaken our devastated world. Nevertheless, in the midst of this conflagration our race continued to retain its archetypes.

128 Ono-zone. The One Cosmic Energy of life, all pervading and omniscient. Ono-zone is absolute harmony and presents itself according to the laws of the universes in which it is manifesting. Prana is a material aspect of ono-zone energy.

“By not permitting debilitated couples to procreate, we managed to select four who could serve as reproducers in laboratories, and even in the most inhospitable conditions we managed to have three perfect children generated from them. Raised in the jungles, not knowing the benefits that their ancestors had enjoyed, the little ones began a new society.

“Like us, they spoke very little. We had long given up the spoken word and had chosen brain-to-brain transmission, thanks to the good performance of extra-cerebral receivers provided by the great technological monster that supported us. After that, it was very difficult to start speaking again and some never managed to do so.

“One of the coordinator groups took on the task of telling the story of what had happened to the terrestrials in symbols that were used for communication at that time. This was done in order to pass history down to the new humans who were already starting to have children. A new biological chain began with a shift in the genetic code.

“This is the story of the race of those who live in the depths of the Earth; the race of those who had to bear much more than you in order to rise out of the ashes of a civilization. It is told here and could serve as a basis for today’s humans, if they wish to take advantage of these experiences.

“While the surface world was falling apart through innumerable cataclysms, our civilization began to regenerate, gradually yet surely. The new Earth, in the center of the planet, bestowed its resources on us in the same way that the previous one had done. However, there was a fundamental difference: it allowed us to start again from a point of no contamination. It was our ‘second chance,’ of which philosophers spoke in the past. It was only then that we realized how important these philosophers were for any community. They knew more than any super-machine, and yet we had actually mocked them!

“About four hundred centuries<sup>129</sup> had to go by before we felt we were strong again. We 129 It must be taken into account that time in the Earth’s interior passes differently than on the surface. Because subject to different magnetic laws, the chronology in these two worlds flows differently. In a same cycle, the Earth’s surface experiences a greater number of centuries and millennia.

knew that once again we had reached the exact point where the road forked; where those who molded the race had once erred and had begun to proclaim the death of the race. We made good use of this second chance, faithfully following the principles contained in the Decalogue that we had inherited from the 'first ones' and which tradition had kept alive. These mandates included things that addressed the experience of past times lived on the surface of the Earth that, for millennia, we had been unable to understand. Shortly thereafter, with the advance of a new science, precepts such as 'Atomic energy is the cause of death and must not be employed' began to make sense to us. Our rediscovery of the atom unveiled the meaning of this first article of the Decalogue, which warned us not to go on with that study.

"This time we chose to look into magnetism for energy, but we discovered that magnetic fields of a certain intensity cause physical changes in objects and in beings. So we abandoned that system as well and tried others, until we selected the energy obtained from capturing ono-zone 'photons' coming from the stars. These photons reached us from the outside through inter-magnetic channels or foci. Thanks to the knowledge and control of this energy, we were able to penetrate even deeper areas of the planet that we had always considered to be dark. We were thus able to build new cities and finally to suspend the restrictions set for birth control.

"Our race continued to grow and there were always those among us who, stimulated by the philosophers, set out to find the original land; that is to say, the birth-place of our species. They headed for the upwelling marine currents, passing through the frozen lands unknown to our ancestors. These lands were the outcome of the ecological disaster caused by them. The travelers reached the continental land after having crossed extensive marine areas. According to your cartography, they went through the territory of Victoria, continuing by sea to New Zealand, and from there to Australia, across Melanesia, after which they arrived in Japan and the coasts of China, between Canton and Tientsin.

"Of those who left, few returned. They were mesmerized by the luminosity of the days, by the blue sky, by the sea breezes, by the abundance of the vegetation that offered them fruits without needing to plant anything, and by the quantity of wild animals available for hunting, a sport that was discovered accidentally and which fascinated them.

“Our governors decided to study the geophysical year of the outside surface with the intention of verifying the conditions there for life to progress. The results were wonderful. It was verified that for thousands of years there had been no signs of the radioactive eruption that had scathed our ancestors. Nature had slowly but relentlessly eliminated all vestiges of contamination.

“Thousands then decided to leave the inner part of the Earth. As had happened previously in our history, the governors once again had to make an important decision. They forbade us to leave the world inside the Earth. This was done in order to stop us from going back to that point of degeneration that we had reached at the time when we had been surface humans. The governors set a time limit for the return of those who had already left. After that these would no longer be re-admitted because they would have even acquired a different physical structure. The unity of the intraterrestrial race was preserved. Those who did not return formed the foundations of the yellow race based in China, Japan, the east coast of Mexico, and the southernmost part of Argentina.<sup>130</sup> Prior to that, the population in China was either white or black. The yellow race that we know today has intraterrestrial origins.

“Escape from the intraterrestrial world occurred through the natural conduits under the seas that interconnect the world of the surface with those of the interior of the Earth. But this was being kept under control.

“The geophysical year on the outside had revealed some interesting facts, besides that of the lack of radiation in the environment. We learned that the human race had not disappeared completely from the surface of the Earth but, because of the extensive mutations it had undergone over time, its humans had a slightly different form than ours, as well as radical changes in their physical appearance. We did not find any representatives of the original race there, but we did come across black and white people in a near-animal state, with a very low level of intelligence.<sup>131</sup>

130 This refers to a genetic-energy foundation that later on mixed with the Atlantean lineage.

“We were also able to verify that our permanent source of water for the inner rings had remained intact. We are referring to what you call Lake Baikal, in Siberia. Around it we found some colonies of animals bearing almost the same characteristics that tradition assigns to the animals that lived together with our ancestors on the surface.

Now that a gradual evolution has granted moderate intelligence to the human beings on Earth’s surface, they rush headlong into the same trap that caused the destruction of the primordial race. The first step in that direction was the building of the atomic bomb, an artifact with unlimited potential for harm that will serve to create governments of terror, throwing the world into total disaster. This disaster may reach us also, because it is impossible to know how far a confrontation using nuclear weapons can reach.

131 Knowledge on the origin of human beings and cultures expands as consciousness expands. What at first may seem irreconcilable to the concrete mind, becomes clear through intuition, moving beyond the conditions set by time and space, which are mental facts.

“We are not willing to allow this to happen. This is why we are warning the world of the surface, through its most representative countries, of this danger. We want them to form an international committee against the use of nuclear energy for war. In exchange, we are willing to reveal the secret for controlling magnetic energy.<sup>132</sup>

132 In spite of the fact that, at high frequencies, magnetic energy can cause deformations in the bodies of those with which it interacts, it can bring great benefits to the planet’s surface humanity, which is karmically not yet ready to contact more pure energies.

Peace exists, and can be experienced on all levels of existence. It is not necessary to theorize over it or transform it into an object for speculation<sup>133</sup>. It comes about through consciousness interacting with the governing laws of the universe it inhabits. It is a result of the harmonious relationship between the creator energies and the forces generated by the creative process. Humans have a fundamental role in that process, and it is their responsibility to take it up. They must recognize their part and promptly fulfill it according to the laws of love and of service.

From immemorial times human beings have been assisted in consecrating themselves to higher life through the sometimes physical presence of sublime beings. Many times this help becomes an opportunity for mutual ascension: those that receive it are liberated from material illusion, and those that provide it ascend to unimaginably powerful levels of consciousness.

This procedure has gone on until this time, and will continue to be active until the planetary transition has been completed. At that point all life on Earth will be modified and will be connected to other laws<sup>134</sup>.

The three etheric centers of the right side consciousness, energy vortices that are components of the new circuit that is being activated in the rescuable human being. That activation is linked to the awakening of the consciousness to non-material laws, since its fully activated expression corresponds to the evolutionary period of humanity in the coming Earth cycle. The transformation is obvious, taking into consideration the old system of chakras in force in the past cycle of the planet, under the regency of DNA and the law of material karma. However, it is important to emphasize that the awakening of the centers of the right side consciousness is gradual<sup>136</sup> and that, in this transitory stage, many rescuable beings are responding to both energy circuits: the old one of the chakras, and the new one of the right side consciousness.

There are cyclic impulses that cause inner nuclei of the being to manifest, which are clearly perceptible during this period. When the energy of those nuclei emerges and reaches the conscious self, it is capable of steering the individual into devoting himself or herself ever more deeply to supra-human goals. Reverence spontaneously grows in those touched in this way. The magnetism peculiar to this energy lights the flame of love in the center of atoms, elevating the vibratory quality of the concrete matter to unknown heights.

Meanwhile, besides these impulses—which on some occasions support a greater movement and in others seem to be absent—there is a continuous call at this time that one cannot help hearing: it resounds in the inner universe of those who aspire to truth, and brings healing balms with it. Even when worldly disorder overtakes the material aspect of these individuals and tends to deafen this call, it silently shows the consciousness that it is time to return to balance. It calms and transforms the being that receives it; it heralds the power that permeates those who give themselves to impersonal service.

In order for it be heard and bring the Earth into another energy state, the full surrender of the being to Supreme Consciousness is basic.

The current degree of the planet's radioactive contamination has an effect on its subtle spheres, disintegrating the thread of life that unites consciousness to bodies. The material atoms have a subtle counterpart to which they are connected by an etheric web. When human beings, inspired by dark forces, generate processes to obtain energy from those atoms, this has a direct effect upon the physical-concrete foundation for anchoring divine power in manifested existence.

Such processes constitute a violation of laws that should be learned, controlled, and then used in an altruistic way for the benefit of the All. The negative karmic consequences generated by this violation are enormous and are already making themselves felt. Only the intervention of a higher power is capable of bringing such an imbalance to a halt. For this reason, the work of transmutation and preservation of life carried out by the planetary centers and by the service groups is immeasurable and constant. If it were not for these, the Earth would no longer exist as a material planet. This book is about the existence of those centers and those groups.
